Wreckage Of Missing Airplane Under Guard

JEWEL CARGO REPORTED ON W. A. E. SHIP

ALPINE, Utah, June 7.—(UP)—Wreckage of the Western Air Express plane that vanished last December 15 with seven persons aboard, lay today as it crashed, scattered on two sides of a sharp mountain peak, still half buried beneath the unmelting remnant of a winter's accumulation of snow, with armed men standing guard beside it.

Ordered To Fire
Postal Inspector M. G. Wenger said he had ordered the guards to shoot any unauthorized person who approached the wreckage. Three times last night guards fired on a group of four men who tried to snatch up souvenirs. None was wounded.

Wenger said if newspapermen insisted on dashing to the scene before department of commerce inspectors hike up the mountain trail to make their official examination, he would call for a detachment of soldiers from Fort Douglas and throw a cordon around the whole area.

Jewel Cargo Rumored
It was reported, without confirmation, that the plane's cargo included a valuable shipment of jewels.

Nothing was to be touched until department of commerce inspectors hike up the mountain trail to make their official examination.

$25,000 VICAR REWARD SOUGHT

DARLINGTON, Eng., June 7.—(UP)—Parishioners started a campaign today to raise a $25,000 fund for the Rev. R. Anderson Jardine, vicar of St. Paul's church, as reward for his daring to defy Church of England authorities to perform a marriage ceremony for the Duke and Duchess of Windsor.

J. W. Watt, a leading member of the parish, offered to take charge of the fund and Henry Hope, lay reader of the church, volunteered to act as treasurer.

Jardine went to Letworth to rest at the home of a son-in-law after his adventure, and his spirited defense of his course in a sermon at his church last night.

"I believe that I saved the government and church of this country from inevitable regrets in years to come for not authorizing a religious ceremony for his royal highness," said Jardine.

J. P. MORGAN SAYS TAXING LEGAL, NOT MORAL QUESTION

NEW YORK, June 7.—(UP)—J. P. Morgan said on his return from England aboard the liner Queen Mary today that "if congress makes stupid mistakes" which leaves loopholes in the tax laws "it is up to congress to remedy them, not for us taxpayers to do so."

The financier, saying his health was "very fine," readily answered questions concerning his reaction to the president's recent denunciation of wealthy tax evaders.

"Taxing is a legal question pure and simple, not a moral question," he said. "If the government objects to tax evaders, it should change the law."

"You do what you are compelled to do by law. It is no pleasure to pay taxes. You don't do any

MUSSOLINI ORDERS NEW SUBMARINES

ROME, June 7.—(UP)—Premier Benito Mussolini has ordered a building program speeded up so as to give the navy a total of 140 submarines soon, it was reported in reliable quarters today.

Italy's present total of submarines—sufficient to cause anxiety to other naval powers—is said to be less than 90.

Mussolini also is said to intend to lay down two 35,000 ton battleships, in addition to the two now building, unless a world arms limitation conference is called soon.

Fascist leaders believed President Roosevelt to be the best hope as regards calling a limitation conference, and pointed to an interview which Mussolini gave recently to an American reporter as indicating a hope that the president might see fit to take the initiative.

The proposed ships would provide notable improvements over the two 25,000 ton battleships now building. These ships, Littoria and Vittorio Veneto, are due to be completed at the end of next year.

Meanwhile, Mussolini staged an impressive naval review between Gaeta and Naples, off the west coast, for Field Marshal Werner von Blomberg, German war minister.

More than 100 units participated, including some 70 submarines. Reliable information was that the tactical problem for the review was whether submarines and destroyers could attack and destroy a fleet of cruisers advancing to attack coastal city. Mussolini's close attention to the British and French naval programs seemed to leave little doubt of the nature of the problem.

LOCAL WOMAN DIES IN CRASH

Mrs. Mildred Martin, 23, of 1526 West Sixth street, Santa Ana, died early today at Mercy hospital near San Diego, of injuries received in a spectacular motorcycle-automobile pileup along a curve of the main highway between Lakeside and Escondido, it was revealed by officers and friends who were investigating.

Riding with her husband, Harold Martin, aircraft company employee at Downey, Mrs. Martin, employee here at Gertrude's cafe, suffered a skull fracture when the motorcycle struck suddenly and she fell. Her head struck a hub cap on a car operated by Paul Davis, who had parked to give aid to two other injured cyclists.

Return from Races
The accident occurred south of Ramona as the Martins and Mr. and Mrs. Donald Ewart of Santa Ana, and two other pairs of motorcycle riders, from Los Angeles county, were returning from races at Lakeside, according to Joe Koons, local friend of the group.

Cyril Spain, 22, Palms, was hurt when he crashed into a car which Dr. Harry M. Faulkner had parked at the edge of the highway. Spain was thrown into the path of a motor ridden by Glenn Stratton, 22, Palms, who also was hurt.

While Faulkner was attending these two, for minor hurts, Davis parked to help him and Martin's cycle ploughed into his car.

COUNCIL READY FOR ACTION ON METERS

Whether definite action will be taken by the city council on the installation of parking meters will be determined at an executive session of the city trustees this afternoon. Should the council decide to take formal action, it will be at the open meeting tonight.

A committee from the chamber of commerce, composed of W. F. Croddy and Harry Hanson, will appear at the council meeting tonight and urge that body to further study the situation before taking action.

DR. F. M. BINKLEY PASSES AT HOME

Dr. Frank M. Binkley, 79, retired physician and resident of Santa Ana for the past 32 years, died this morning at his home, 2035 North Broadway. Funeral services are being arranged by Smith and Tutill's mortuary and will be announced later.

Dr. Binkley was active in medical circles and in civic affairs of this city until his retirement from active practice several years ago.

In addition to his widow, Mrs. Mary Bell Binkley, he is survived by two sons, Dr. Robert W. Binkley, Selma, Calif., and Prof. W. C. Binkley, Vanderbilt university, Nashville, Tenn., and a niece, Mrs. Annie B. Beasley, Santa Ana.

Jail Terms Given Nine CIO Leaders

AUBURN, Me., June 7.—(UP)—A superior court judge today sentenced nine C. I. O. leaders to five months each in jail and fined $100 each plus one eighteenth of trial costs for criminal conspiracy in connection with the 74-day Auburn-Lewiston shoe strike.

Judge Arthur Chapman gave Defense Counsel A. Raymond Rogers until August 4 to file a transcript of exceptions in the Maine law (supreme) court. He fixed bail at $1000 each.

The defendants were taken to the county jail in the same building while associates prepared to raise bail.

The nine defendants, convicted by a jury after 9-1-2 hours' deliberation, were Mrs. Mary Dauphine, William B. Mahan and Martin Lawless, of Lynn, Mass.; Paul Salvaggio, William J. Thornton, John D. Nolan and George Kander, of Boston; William J. MacKee, of Saugus, Mass., and Paul Doyle, of Lewiston.

STRIKE CLOSES MICHIGAN CITY

LANSING, Mich., June 7.—(UP)—An industrial labor holiday, called by the United Automobile Workers of America in protest against the arrest of seven strike pickets, today was extended to transportation agencies, grocery stores, and the Michigan capital city, today was closed.

Only a few hours after the automobile union had made more than 12,000 workers idle by calling a strike in industrial plants, the bus system operated by the city and taxicab companies suspended operations.

The union, demonstrating against the arrest of pickets at the Capitol City Wrecking company, announced subsequently that the stores of the Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea company; Kroger Grocery & Baking company and the J. W. Knapp department stores were closed.

Mrs. Lester E. Washburn, wife of the local UAW secretary, was one of the seven persons held at the jail. They were arrested as the result of picketing activities at the Capitol City Wrecking company.

Other legacies include $2000 for a brother-in-law, Dr. D. W. B. W. of Colton; $500 for a cousin, Mrs. A. V. Gray, of Santa Ana; $500 for a "classmate and friend," Mrs. Amelia B. Keech, Santa Ana; $500 for a namesake, Sedalia R. Hutson, Woodfield, Ohio; $300 for another namesake, Edith Sedalia Hill, of Upland; $500 each for four other cousins, Orpha Manspacher, Santa Monica, Laura M. Irwin, Milwaukee, Wis., May Cubbison, Albuquerque, N. M., and Mrs. Hatfield Coldwell, Scottsdale, Ariz.

The remainder of the estate, estimated at about $105,000, goes to the niece, Miss Battin.

BASQUE LOYALISTS FORCED TO RETREAT

HENDAYE, French-Spanish Frontier, June 7.—(UP)—Basque loyalist communiques admitted today that they had been forced to "rectify" their lines in the Lemaona sector southeast of Bilbao after a big scale nationalist attack.

It was indicated that the communiques bore out nationalist claims that in a counter-attack, they had thrown the loyalists back from positions won in a series of offensives in the Lemaona region.

Late News Flashes

WASHINGTON, June 7.—(UP)—The house today passed a bill extending the Public Works administration for two years. The measure gives the PWA $40,000,000 in addition to its present revolving fund to be spent for public works projects.

BARCELONA, Spain, June 7.—(UP)—A dispatch from Gerona said today that an insurgent warship, believed to be the Canarias, bombarded the towns of San Feliu de Guixols and Palamos, northeast of Barcelona. Details were lacking.

WASHINGTON, June 7.—(UP)—Sen. William E. Borah, R., Ida., today proposed enactment of legislation designed to prohibit shipment in interstate commerce of goods produced in violation of federal anti-trust laws.

ST. LOUIS, SENEGAL, AFRICA, June 7.—(UP)—Amelia Earhart, completing the southern trans-Atlantic crossing of her flight around the world, arrived here today at 7:35 p. m. Greenwich time (3:35 p. m. EDT), the Air France service announced.

WASHINGTON, June 7.—(UP)—Sen. H. Styles Bridges, R., N. H., introduced a resolution in the Senate today calling for an investigation of "interference" in delivery of mail at strikebound factories.

New Serial To Start In The Register

Madly, Coral Randall fell in love with Prof. David Armstrong. Ecstatically the two eloped and were married against college rules. And then the secret leaked out, plunging both of them into a crisis never to be forgotten. What happened makes one of the most tender love stories ever penned. It's "Co-ed Wife," a new serial beginning in The Register on Wednesday, "Co-ed Wife" was written by Eugenia Mackiernan. The first installment will appear on Wednesday, June 9.

$120,000 LEFT BY S. A. TEACHER

The late Miss Sedalia Cubbison, former Santa Ana high school teacher, who left an estate valued at about $120,000, made her niece, Edna C. Battin of Colton her principal heir, but provided legacies aggregating $8400 to church and benevolent societies, it was shown when her will was filed for probate in superior court Saturday.

The niece, Miss Battin, is executrix of the will, represented by Attorney R. C. Mize, of Rutan, Mize and Kroese.

Legacies include $7500 for the First M. E. church of Santa Ana, $1000 to the Children's Home Society of Southern California, $500 to the Orange County Crippled Children's Association, $250 to the Santa Ana Y. M. C. A. and $250 to the Y. W. C. A., and $650 to the Santa Ana Elbell club ($500 for the building fund and $150 for the day nursery). The M. E. church $7500 was bequeathed as follows: $1000 for the building fund; $1000 for the world service, in memory of W. B. Cubbison, father of the deceased; $1000 for the Women's Foreign Missionary society, in memory of Mrs. Marmena R. Cubbison, mother of Miss Cubbison; $1000 for the Women's Home Missionary society; $250 for needy of the church; $500 for its conference claimants; $750 for claimants of the Southern California conference; $250 for the Mexican M. E. church.

PARIS REPORTS ON EX-KAISER DENIED

AMSTERDAM, June 7.—(UP)—Reports published in Paris that the former kaiser was seriously ill are untrue, the court marshal's office at House Doorn said today.

WAGE, HOUR BILL AIDED BY CIO HEAD

WASHINGTON, June 7.—(UP)—John L. Lewis today threw the "general support" of his Committee For Industrial Organization behind the pending Black-Connery wages and hours bill but urged against giving the proposed labor standards board wide discretion to set varying minimum wages.

Testifying before a joint session of house and senate labor committees, Lewis said minimum wage and maximum hour provisions of the bill were "a modest beginning of genuine planning towards a better economic order."

Lewis' approval of the measure brought commendation of its principles from organized labor's two major combinations.

American Federation of Labor President William Green told the committee last week that his organization supported the measure with some reservations.

Lewis speaking for the United Mine Workers of America and the Committee for Industrial Organization said four basic reasons necessitated prompt enactment of the bill.

"First, it will increase mass purchasing power, which is an essential condition to permanent economic recovery and stable prosperity," he said.

"Second, it will, through reduction of hours of work, make way for the employment of hundreds of thousands of industrial workers who are now without work or on relief."

"Third, from a humanitarian standpoint it will bring a greater measure of leisure and economic well being. It will mean at least a glimmer of sunlight to millions of submerged American workers who now live in economic darkness and despair."

"Fourth, from the viewpoint of industrial democracy, the measure will offer to those unfortunate victims of our existing economic system, an opportunity to rise to it."

STUDENTS DELAYED BY GIRL'S ILLNESS

Illness of Mary Paxton, Santa Ana Junior college sophomore girl delayed until this morning the return trip of some 250 students who were enjoying the annual holiday "yacht party" outing at Avalon Catalina island, as guests of the Buccaneers service club of the junior college.

The students were accompanied by Calvin C. Flint, dean of men, and A. J. (Bill) Cook, coach at Santa Ana Junior college.

Miss Paxton was stricken on the return trip with an attack of appendicitis last night, about 10 minutes out of Avalon bay. Dr. J. W. Perrin, owner and pilot of the large water taxi, immediately returned to Catalina, where the Paxton girl was taken to a physician.

The party of students arrived in Long Beach this morning about 3 o'clock, with Miss Paxton being rushed to her home at 501 French street, Santa Ana. She is reported to be resting easier today.

SCHOOL TEACHER CALLED BY DEATH

Miss Pearl C. Crutchfield, 45, resident of Santa Ana for the past 27 years, died early today at her home here. Funeral services, under direction of the Smith and Tutill mortuary, will be held tomorrow at the Garden Grove Methodist church, with the Rev. Charles Sediter, pastor of the church, officiating. Interment will be in Fairhaven cemetery.

Miss Crutchfield, a native of North Vernon, Ind., came to California with her parents when she was one year old. For the past 24 years she had been a teacher in the Garden Grove elementary school.

In addition to her parents, Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Crutchfield, she is survived by one sister, Mrs. W. L. Reed; three nieces, Mrs. L. L. Reed; Miss Anna Reid and Miss Margaret Reed, and one uncle, Clarence Crutchfield, all residents of Orange county.

STAR DIES

Jean Harlow, blond film siren, who passed away at Good Samaritan hospital, in Los Angeles this morning of Uremic poisoning.

SEEK ACTION BY U. S. ON STRIKE

CLEVELAND, June 7.—(UP)—A spokesman for Republic Steel corporation said today that "all the facts" in connection with stoppage of parcel post food packages which the company tried to mail to mills besieged by strikers had been presented to the United States district attorney here.

Whether the company sought prosecution of persons alleged to have interfered with the mails could not be learned definitely.

Controversies over postal, railroad and aerial deliveries to blockaded mills have become major issues in the C. I. O.-sponsored strike which has made 70,000 employees of three big independent steel companies idle.

Three railroads awaited a reply from Gov. Martin L. Davey of Ohio to their request for immediate state protection against strikers who they said had destroyed railroad property, blocked trains to the mills, and created a virtual "state of riot."

In Washington it was said that interference with the railroads might be a matter for justice department intervention.

Donald B. Gillies, a vice president of the Republic corporation, was ordered to stand trial here tomorrow on a warrant charging the company with illegal use of a Cleveland airfield. The company used the field as a base for planes delivering food to plants in Warren and Niles after other means of delivery failed.

CHILD LONGS FOR JUST ONE BIRTHDAY PRESENT—HER DOG

Little Ruth Marie Causley has a birthday today but she is not happy. It is bad enough for a little girl to be sick in bed with the scarlet fever but when the little girl's pet dog is lost, that is just too much for an eight-year-old heart to bear.

Three days ago, while Ruth Marie was battling fever and all members of the family worrying over her condition, "Trinket," a year-old Cocker spaniel, particular pet of Ruth Marie, wandered away.

The dog has never been seen since and Ruth Marie finally had to be told that her pet was lost. To make it worse the three other children and other members of the family all are in quarantine and cannot go out and look for the dog. Humane Officer Harold Pickering, however, is conducting a search for the dog and is asking that anyone knowing the where-

BLONDE FILM ACTRESS ILL SHORT TIME

HOLLYWOOD, June 7.—(UP)—Jean Harlow, blonde film siren, died at Good Samaritan hospital today of uremic poisoning.

She was believed to be recovering from a gall bladder attack at her home in Beverly Hills when she suddenly collapsed and was taken to the hospital. Within an hour after her arrival there Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios announced that she had died.

In a telephone call from the hospital to M. G. M. studios, an official said: "The end has come." That was at 11:35 a. m.

Confusion at Hospital
The hospital presented a scene of confusion. All departments refused to discuss the Harlow death or to call Dr. E. C. Fishbaugh to the telephone. He was Miss Harlow's physician. Fifteen newspapermen were refused admittance. Members of the city fire department, inhalator squad, called at the last minute to furnish oxygen for the declining star, left the hospital and hurried to their automobile. They brushed aside questioners, but one said, "Yes, she's

RICHMOND FORD STRIKE AT END

RICHMOND, Cal., June 7.—(UP)—Workers at the Ford Motor company assembly plant here returned to work today with the result of their two-week strike still confused because of counter claims as to whether the United Automobile Workers of America was to be recognized as sole bargaining agent for Ford employees.

Agreement Claimed
Frank Slaby, local head of the U. A. W. A., who led 1500 workers out of the plant in a demand for recognition of his union and other concessions, claimed Ford officials agreed to a plan to permit U. A. W. A. men to represent all workers in bargaining with representatives of Henry Ford.

Mrs. Alice Rosseter, regional director of the National Labor Relations board, said that recognition of the 12-man UAWA committee as the bargaining agency was made verbally by Ford officials.

"Is that not equivalent to the recognition by Ford of the UAWA?" Mrs. Rosseter was asked.

"Not necessarily," she answered. "I suppose the newspapers must

SCYTHES, SICKLES ARRIVE FOR DUKE

NOETECH, Austria, June 7.—(UP)—The Duke of Windsor was reported today to be preparing for qualification as a laymaker. A selection of scythes and sickles arrived at Wasserleiburg, a castle where he and the duchess are honeymooning, and it was said that they were for the duke's private use.

During his stay at Ennsfeld castle several months ago the duke practised with the scythe and it was believed he intended to go in for haymaking as an addition to his physical exercises. He already has a pair of Australian leather breeches such as peasants wear.

MASS MEETING ON COURT PLAN CALLED TODAY

Plans for a mass meeting to be held Thursday night in the junior college building, protesting proposed changes in the Supreme Court, have been completed, according to Jules Markel, chairman of the Santa Ana committee, in charge of the affair.

The meeting is sponsored by the Orange County Committee of the League for Supreme Court Independence, headed by Ben Tarver, as chairman. The group headed by Markel is the Santa Ana branch of the county-wide unit.

Prominent Speaker
Jacob D. Allen, Chicago lecturer and writer, will be the principal speaker and, according to Markel, will be introduced by Thomas L. McFadden, Anaheim attorney. Allen is ending a speaking tour of 15 Southern California counties during which Tarver said, he delivered more than a score of lectures on the dangers lurking behind the President's proposal to reorganize the United States Supreme Court. In his talk Allen will discuss the anti-change side of the Supreme Court issue from the view of the layman, emphasizing the necessity "for keeping the Supreme Court free from all political entanglements."

Markel said that arrangements have been made for delegations representing Orange, Anaheim, Fullerton, Brea, La Habra, Garden Grove, Placentia, Laguna Beach and Newport-Balboa.

DEATH CLAIMS JEAN HARLOW

Miss Harlow's mother, Mrs. Jean Bello, who was the guardian of Jean's turbulent screen and marital careers, was with her daughter when she died.

Mrs. Bello refused to give up until the very last, saying a half an hour before: "Jean is a very sick girl, but I hope for the best."

The fatal illness struck Miss Harlow on May 29 when she had to leave a set where she was starring with Clark Gable, the screen's current great lover.

For several days, her illness was disregarded as severe, but over the week end the studio and her mother reported that she was mending rapidly and soon would resume work.

Shortly after noon details of the scene at the Harlow death chamber became available. Among those in the room when the end came was William Powell, whose name had been linked romantically with Miss Harlow's recently in Hollywood gossip.

Outside in the corridor, Warner Baxter, veteran film player, walked up and down, wringing his hands in anxiety.

Suddenly, at 11:37 1-4 a. m., Powell burst out of the room, threw one arm around Baxter and said: "My God, Warner, she's dead."

Others in the room were Marino Bello, her step-father, who recently was divorced by the star's mother; Dr. Fishbaugh, Dr. Leland S. Chapman; an aunt named Brown, and Miss Harlow's maid, Blanche.

Collapse Revealed
An assistant director on "Saragat," the ill-fated picture in which Gable and Miss Harlow were working, revealed the star's collapse on May 29 was sudden. She left the set and called the assistant to her dressing room.

"I don't know what is the matter with me," Miss Harlow told Tommy Andre, assistant, "but I feel so ill I haven't the strength to hold up my head, or take off my makeup."

The frightened assistant called Jack Conway, director, and E. J. Mannix, producer of the picture, who summoned a physician. The star was taken to her home immediately.

Dr. Fishbaugh said Miss Harlow's illness started as a stomach ailment. The illness was complicated by a severe cold and gradually the gall bladder became infected. Uremic poisoning developed, to be followed by acute nephritis, acute edema, and a fevered condition of the brain.

Jean Harlow was a dentist's daughter, born in Kansas City in 1911. She was 26 years old when death suddenly ended her career. Her father was Dr. Monte Carpenter, who is still in practice in Kansas City.

Jean's mother was a strong influence on the life of the girl who soared to stardom in the films. After the mother's divorce from her dentist husband she married Marino Bello, and in Hollywood took over direction of her "baby's" fast moving career.

Mrs. Bello herself always had wanted to be an actress. When the budding star sprang to fame, she took her mother's maiden name and under it went to the top. "Hell's Angels," a Rupert Hughes production, was the vehicle which rocketed the platinum blonde into the upper strata of screenland. Hughes passed the young actress along to Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer and there she met Paul Bern, one of that lot's star producers.

Bern guided Jean carefully in her continued advance, and ultimately their friendship blossomed into a marriage which resulted in tragedy.

Two months after they were married in 1932, Bern, melancholy but brilliant director was found dead, naked in his bathroom, with a bullet in his head. The young girl, inconsolable for a time, again plunged into her career, and a year later she had married her former fiancé, Harold Rosson.

KEN Murray SAYS:

HOLLYWOOD, June 5.—He's going to sidestep England—maybe he doesn't like the smell of Stanley Baldwin's pipe—but like the good sport he's always been, the Duke of Windsor will make a world tour, back on his old job as the British Empire's star salesman. And if you don't think that's tough duty, how'd you like sending back home office reports like these:

Dear Brother George VI—As you know, principal industries of Africa are fanning yourself with palm leaf and wearing as few clothes as possible. Both industries are flourishing. If you ever make this territory yourself, don't wear your ermine B.V.D.'s.

EDDIE.
Dear King—Called on Chief Ocala of the principality of Growf today. Didn't unload my sample cases, but presented him with necklace of brass beer checks and a solid gold toothpick. The latter made quite a hit with him as he had previously been picking his teeth with a spear. ED.

Gear Georgie—In South Oomph today. Business pretty good hereabouts. Natives are getting $1.25 a bushel for their uncut diamonds. Bought a few pecks for you to sew on your new vest. ED.

I'll say it's a tough job, even without a wife to support. Copyright, 1937, McNaughton Syn. Inc.

dustrial citizenship or, in other words, a chance through unionization to attain to collective bargaining with their employers and thus achieve industrial emancipation."

Lewis urged that the bill be made to specify a maximum work week of 35 hours, or five seven hour days, with the standards board to have discretion to authorize a 40 hour week in certain cases or to require a maximum 20 hour week in other cases. He said he believes that congress should write into the bill a minimum wage of 40 cents per hour. Under a 35 hour week the basic weekly wage then would be $14, which he said should also hold for any cases in which the board ordered a 20 hour week, and should be increased to $16 for 40 hour week.

CRASH IS FATAL TO BEACH WOMAN

Mrs. Ann Brew, Long Beach, died at noon today in Seaside hospital, Long Beach, as result of internal injuries suffered in an accident Saturday night a mile southeast of the Arches intersection on Coast highway. She is the 38th traffic victim of the year in Orange county. Fifteen fewer had died at the same date last year.

Cars operated by H. J. Airth, Long Beach, and Catherine E. Krogh, 41, Long Beach, collided at the Coast highway-Bay street intersection. Airth was driving east on Coast highway. Mrs. Krogh made a boulevard stop, as she drove north on Bay, then entered the highway, officers said. The Krogh car was struck on the left rear side with terrific force.

Pat Smith, Ford representative, who came here from Detroit to deal with the strike, said the matter of union recognition was to be considered at further conferences, and in Detroit. Harry Bennett, Ford personnel director, was quoted as saying that "nobody has any authority to recognize the U. A. W. A. as sole bargaining agent for the Richmond plant."

Informed of the statements made by Smith and Bennett, Slaby replied: "It means only that Henry Ford is recognizing the U. A. W. A. in fact, though refusing to admit it."

200 Men Return to Work
Approximately 200 men returned to work shortly after 7 a. m. this morning and plant officials said that all other employees would be back on the job within a week.

Decision to end the strike was made yesterday at a mass meeting in Oakland at which the strikers, according to Slaby, agreed to the following eight point proposal.

1.—The company agrees not to discriminate against union members.

2.—Seniority will be observed.

3.—All other plant organizations will be disbanded.

4.—The U.A.W.A. committee is granted sole bargaining rights for all employees.

5.—All men return to their respective positions.

6.—No favorites will be given extra work.

7.—The National Labor Relations board will witness the agreement.

8.—The N.L.R.B. will sit in as referee on all grievances that caused the strike. Slaby said that conferences between the union, the company and the N.R.L.B. would start today.

Live Bait Boat Rescued After Fight With Sea

Drifting off Huntington Beach after its motor went dead, the Garey, a live bait boat, operating out of Huntington Beach, was taken in tow yesterday and towed to Newport Harbor by the Sunshine, one of the fleet of fishing boats from Newport Beach.

The Garey had just returned with a charter party and had started to haul in fishermen from the barge anchored off the Huntington Beach pier. On its first trip from the barge, the vessel's motor went dead. The anchor was dropped but failed to hold, and for a while there was danger of the boat drifting ashore.

Word was received at Newport Beach that a boat was in trouble and drifting toward shore. D. W. King, operator of a fleet of fishing boats at Newport left immediately in the Sunshine. Finding that the anchor had taken hold and the Garey was in no danger of drifting ashore, King used his boat to bringing the remaining barge passengers and then towed the disabled craft to port.

WRECKAGE OF PLANE GUARDED

out of Los Angeles to death in the mountains early in the winter, were interspersed among pieces of metal, baggage and mail cargo that littered the mountainsides for half a mile.

The evidence was that the plane had struck the granite wall about 20 feet from the top. Parts of the fuselage and wings rebounded and rolled back. The motor, bodies and main sections of the wreckage hurled the peak and dropped down a 300 foot precipice.

Plane Parts On Rocks
Parts of motor, the propeller and metal wings still were clinging insecurely to jagged edges of rock on the north side of the mountain.

It is Lake Hardy peak, which rises some 300 feet above the surrounding pinnacles of the Wasatch range, and towers 10,650 feet above sea level. From the air Lake Hardy peak looks sharp as a razor.

Apparently Pilot S. J. Samson flew into it blindly during a storm. At 20 feet more altitude he would have cleared it. Then, in 10 minutes he could have reached the Salt Lake City airport, 30 miles away.

The plane must have struck the mountain at full force, driving at 150 miles an hour.

No piece of wreckage was more than two feet long. Parts from the instrument panel, torn mail pouches and piles of letters lay all along the granite hogback ledge that connects Chipman and Lone peaks.

Main Section Buried
The main section of the motor was believed buried in a 20-foot snow drift. It had not been exposed yet.

The official search was being operated from a camp, established 9000 feet up the mountain for that purpose. It was directed to this area by natives who found letters that had been cargo aboard the plane.

Left L. A. Dec. 14
The plane left Los Angeles at 11:55 p. m., December 14, reported by radio from over Milford, Ut., at 2:28 a. m., Dec. 15, and was never heard from again. In addition to Pilot Samson, there were aboard: William Bogen, co-pilot; Miss Gladys Witt, stewardess, and the passengers: Mr. and Mrs. John Wolfe, Chicago; H. W. Edwards, St. Paul, radio engineer for Northwest Airlines, and C. Christopher, of Dwight, Ill.

Fifty-four per cent of American tourists prefer to tour over a wide area rather than go to a fixed point and spend the greater part of the vacation there.

MASS MEETING ON COURT PLAN CALLED TODAY

Plans for a mass meeting to be held Thursday night in the junior college building, protesting proposed changes in the Supreme Court, have been completed, according to Jules Markel, chairman of the Santa Ana committee, in charge of the affair.

The meeting is sponsored by the Orange County Committee of the League for the Supreme Court Independence, headed by Ben Tarver, as chairman. The group headed by Markel is the Santa Ana branch of the county-wide unit.

Prominent Speaker
Jacob D. Allen, Chicago lecturer and writer, will be the principal speaker and, according to Markel, will be introduced by Thomas L. McFadden, Anaheim attorney. Allen is ending a speaking tour of 12 Southern California counties during which Tarver said, he delivered more than a score of lectures on the dangers lurking behind the President's proposal to reorganize the United States Supreme Court. In his talk Allen will discuss the anti-change side of the Supreme Court issue from the view of the layman, emphasizing the necessity "for keeping the Supreme Court free from all political entanglements."

Markel said that arrangements have been made for delegations representing Orange, Anaheim, Fullerton, Brea, La Habra, Garden Grove, Placentia, Laguna Beach and Newport-Balboa.

Miss Harlow's mother, Mrs. Jean Bello, who was the guardian of Jean's turbulent screen and marital careers, was with her daughter when she died.

Mrs. Bello refused to give up until the very last, saying a half an hour before: "Jean is a very sick girl, but I hope for the best."

Ill May 29
The fatal illness struck Miss Harlow on May 29 when she had to leave a set where she was starring with Clark Gable, the screen's current great lover.

For several days, her illness was disregarded as severe, but over the week end the studio and her mother reported that she was mending rapidly and soon would resume work.

Shortly after noon details of the scene at the Harlow death chamber became available. Among those in the room when the end came was William Powell, whose name had been linked romantically with Miss Harlow's recently in Hollywood gossip.

Outside in the corridor, Warner Baxter, veteran film player, walked up and down, wringing his hands in anxiety.

Suddenly, at 11:37 1-4 a. m., Powell burst out of the room, threw an arm around Baxter and said: "My God, Warner, she's dead."

Others in the room were Marino Bello, her step-father, who recently was divorced by the star's mother; Dr. Fishbaugh, Dr. Leland S. Chapman; an aunt named Brown, and Miss Harlow's maid, Blanche.

Collapse Revealed

An assistant director on "Saratorn," the ill-fated picture in which Gable and Miss Harlow were working, revealed the star's collapse on May 29 was sudden. She left the set and called the assistant to her dressing room.

"I don't know what is the matter with me," Miss Harlow told Tommy Andre, assistant, "but I feel so ill I haven't the strength to hold up my head, or take off my makeup."

The frightened assistant called Jack Conway, director, and E. J. Mannix, producer of the picture, who summoned a physician. The star was taken to her home immediately.

Dr. Fishbaugh said Miss Harlow's illness started as a stomach ailment. The illness was complicated by a severe cold and gradually the gall bladder became infected. Uremic poisoning developed, to be followed by acute nephritis, acute edema, and a fevered condition of the brain.

Jean Harlow was a dentist's daughter, born in Kansas City in 1911. She was 26 years old when death suddenly ended her career. Her father was Dr. Monte Carpenter, who is still in practice in Kansas City.

Jean's mother was a strong influence on the life of the girl who soared to stardom in the films. After the mother's divorce from her dentist husband she married Marino Bello, and in Hollywood took over direction of her "baby's" fast moving career.

Mrs. Bello herself always had wanted to be an actress. When the budding star sprang to fame, she took her mother's maiden name and under it went to the top. "Hell's Angels," a Rupert Hughes production, was the vehicle which rocketed the platinum blonde into the upper strata of screenland. Hughes passed the young actress along to Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer and there she met Paul Bern, one of that lot's star producers.

Bern guided Jean carefully in her continued advance, and ultimately their friendship blossomed into a marriage which resulted in tragedy. Two months after they were married in 1933, Bern, melancholy but brilliant director was found dead, naked in his bathroom, with a bullet in his head. The young girl, inconsolable for a time, again plunged into her career, and a year later she had married her second husband, Harold Rosson.

KEN Murray SAYS:

HOLLYWOOD, June 5.—He's going to sidestep England—maybe he doesn't like the smell of Stanley Baldwin's pipe—but like the good sport he's always been, the Duke of Windsor will make a world tour, back on his old job as the British Empire's star salesman. And if you don't think that's tough duty, how'd you like sending back home office reports like these:

Dear Brother George VI.—As you know, principal industries of Africa are fanning yourself with palm leaf and wearing as few clothes as possible. Both industries are flourishing. If you ever make this territory yourself, don't wear your ermine B.V.D's.

DEATH NOTICES

A WORD OF COMFORT

You have never guessed the force of the instincts, emotions, loyalties and capacities which exist beneath the thinking-plane of your life.

In the face of your devastating grief, you may be unable to "think through" your confidence in God's love and power. Give reign to the deeper impulse to depend upon Him; live your allegiance to Him in the sure and certain hope that He will not suffer to fail.

While God never promised that you would completely understand Him or yourself while on this earth, He has assured you of His abiding love and that in communion with Him you are destined for victory over every doubt and fear.

DIDIER—Funeral services for Hortense Didier, who passed away at her home, 828 Garfield street, June 6, 1937, will be held at 9:30 a. m. tomorrow at St. Joseph's Catholic church. Friends may call at 8 p. m. tonight to recite the Rosary. Interment in Holy Sepulcher cemetery.

BINKLEY—At his home, 2035 N. Broadway, June 7, 1937, Dr. Frank M. Binkley, aged 79 years. Doctor Binkley was born in Tennessee and had resided in Santa Ana since 1905. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Mary Bell Binkley; two sons, Dr. Robert W. Binkley, Selma, Cal.; Prof. W. C. Binkley, Nashville, Tenn.; niece, Mrs. Annie B. Binkley, Santa Ana. Funeral services will be held at 10 a. m. tomorrow at St. Joseph's Catholic church. Friends may call at 8 p. m. tonight to recite the Rosary. Interment at Smith and Tutthill.

CRUTCHFIELD—June 6th, 1937, Miss Pearl C. Crutchfield, of Hazard street, Garden Grove. Miss Crutchfield was a teacher in the Garden Grove school for 24 years and is survived by her father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. P. F. Crutchfield; a sister, Mrs. Wesley Reed; niece, Mrs. Lucile Tournat; Miss Anna Reid and Miss Margaret Reid, and an uncle, Clarence Crutchfield, all of Garden Grove.

SCOTT FINDS "SCOTTIE"
V. V. Scott and "little Scottie" became friends last night. Scott, ice company official, 1529 East First street, called city police to explain he had found a black Scottie dog which needed a home or had been lost and could not find his home. Police sent the animal to Poundmaster H. D. Pickering, who sought the owner.

FARRAR LISTED AMONG VICTIMS

Fred C. Farrar, brother of Mrs. James B. Tucker, Santa Ana, has been definitely identified as one of the victims who burned to death Friday when a Greyhound bus overturned near Redding, Calif., and burst into flames.

According to Coroner Duggins of Redding, Farrar is one of the five victims who have been positively identified. Two bodies, charred beyond recognition, still are unidentified. Others identified, in addition to Farrar, were: Mortimer Wilson, Sacramento, driver of the bus; C. A. S. Shaeffer, Wray, Colo.; Timothy Neville, Redding lumberjack, and Alfred Vessell, Negro, Marysville.

Farrar, who had been in Santa Ana visiting his sister and her family, was returning to his employment in Oregon and had boarded the ill-fated bus at Sacramento. His body will be sent to his former home in Provo, Utah, for burial, following an inquest to be held tomorrow at Redding.

DRUNK DRIVING CHARGE

Declared by a local doctor to be "moderately intoxicated," after his arrest at Fourth and Spurgeon, last night by Officers P. L. Grouard and L. C. Rogers, Clyde Riggs, 31, Route 2, Box 363, Santa Ana, was charged with drunk driving.

"In the beginning God created the heaven and the earth." This verse from Genesis was the Golden Text in the lesson-sermon on "God the Only Cause and Creator" on Sunday in all Christian Science churches, branches of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Massachusetts.

One of the Scriptural selections

In the lesson-sermon cited these words of Paul to the Colossians: "If ye then be risen with Christ, seek those things which are above, where Christ sitteth on the right hand of God. Set your affections on things above, not on things on the earth. For ye are dead, and your life is hid with Christ in God. When Christ, who is our life, shall appear, then shall ye also appear with him in glory."

A correlative passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, stated: "In Colossians (iii, 4) Paul writes: 'When Christ, who is our life, shall appear (be manifested), then shall ye also appear (be manifested) with him in glory.' When spiritual being is understood in all its perfection, continuity, and might, then shall man be found in God's image."

PHYSICIANS FACE PROBLEM OF INDIGENT

U. S. GROUP TO ACT ON SCHEME FOR SOLUTION

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., June 7. (UP)—The American Medical Association, opening its 88th annual meeting, listed as its No. 1 problem today the question, "What to do about the thousands of men and women who are too poor to pay for physicians' services?"

Charles Gordon Heyd, association president, presented the following formula and asked the 175 members of the house of delegates if they were prepared to accept it:

"1.—That every practitioner believes that the indigent is entitled to medical services free of all charges and that the cost of this service should be paid by taxes levied on the general population.

Local Problem

"2.—The principle that indigence is a local problem and should be handled in the area in which it arises.

"3.—The extension of medical services to the indigents in their homes and the doctors' offices with remuneration to the physicians on a capitation basis under the direction of the county medical society.

"4.—The certification of indigents, fairly, sincerely, honestly and sympathetically by the application of standards of eligibility, by central bureaus under the department of welfare, with proper representation from the county medical society.

"5.—A medical census of the indigents, to learn what our load is and how to take care of it.

"6.—A limitation on the numbers of patients that may attend any one clinic.

"7.—The payment of a fair remuneration to all physicians working in outpatient departments or giving medical services to the indigents in their homes.

"8.—The unequivocal opposition to all forms of compulsory health insurance."

Heyd explained that another major problem confronting the medical profession was the "catastrophic illness"—the emergency that is expensive and for which no ordinary family can budget.

New Technique

As the delegates assembled, they witnessed a demonstration of a new surgical technique, known as "psycho-surgery," which, it is claimed, alleviates mental ills of humans, such as anxiety, depression, insomnia, suicidal ideas, delusions, melancholia, nervous indigestion and hysterical paralysis and transforms wild animals into gentle creatures.

The new surgery—a brain operation—originally was announced last year by Dr. Egas Moniz of Lisbon, Portugal. It consists of separating 12 small lobes of the white matter in the brain, underlying the gray matter of the two frontal lobes from the rest of the brain's white matter. The operation is described as a pre-frontal lobotomy.

RETAIL CLERKS TO OPEN DRIVE FOR MEMBERS

Plans for an intensive, county-wide membership drive will be started at 8 p. m. tomorrow when members of the Retail Clerks' Protective association meet with Boyd Buffett, international organizer and 12 members of the organizing committee of the Long Beach local.

Members of the association, affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, will meet in Labor temple, 402 West Fourth street.

Take First Step

According to Jack Burman, president of the Orange county group, tomorrow night's meeting will be the first definite step toward organizing all retail clerks in every community in the county. The first organization was formed in this city and numbers among its members clerks in practically all business establishments.

Burman said such organization has a definite bearing on the future welfare of retail salesmen. The meeting tomorrow night will be open for discussion of all phases of organization and benefits to members. Burman is expecting a large attendance.

Robertson Finds Local Oranges In Lead In Midwest

Orlyn Robertson, local insurance man, returned today after attending the national field club convention of the Mutual Life Insurance Company of New York, held at the Edgewater Beach Hotel in Chicago, May 28 and 29. Robertson was accompanied by Mrs. Robertson and their daughter, Mary Jane.

The Robertsons visited in San Francisco and at Marshfield, Mo., en route.

According to Robertson, 300 representatives of the company from all parts of the nation attended the convention. Robertson was the twenty-fourth person in the United States to qualify for the trip. In order to qualify, a representative of the company was to have sold $250,000 insurance in one year. This was Robertson's fourth consecutive year to qualify. He also led the Los Angeles agency in paid-for business during the month of May, he stated.

"California oranges are mighty popular back east," Robertson said, "but consumers must pay a high price for them. Business is good in general, and from appearances the farmers of the middle-west are better off than they have been for some time."

Carnes now is in the St. Joseph hospital where he is making rapid progress towards recovery. Proceeds from tickets will be presented to Carnes as a graduation gift.

RUNS IN WRONG PLACE

CLEVELAND — (UP) — Leroy Gassaway, Central High school athlete, found himself in an embarrassing situation in a recent indoor track meet. Gassaway, entered in the 880-yard event, ran several laps of the half-mile before he discovered he was in the wrong race. Fatigue defeated him when he finally ran in the right race.

SPEEDERS FINED AS NEWS OF OTHER POLICE WORK MOUNTS

"Aw, heck!" probably was the thought of John F. Heck, Whittier, as he was fined $8 for speeding by Judge J. G. Mitchell, Saturday.

Three other speeders and three boulevard stop violators, who may or may not have said "heck!" were among the offenders fined by Judge J. G. Mitchell Saturday. Speeders were: Haines Ainsworth, 1407 South Ross, $6; Glendon R. Fosholt, Long Beach, $8; and Robert Adair, Los Angeles, $10. Boulevard stop jumpers each fined 20 dollars, were: William Griswald, 115 1-2 West 18th street, Donald R. Herweh, Fullerton, and David Ralston, Huntington Beach.

James A. Tarpley, 648 North Van Ness street, called police Saturday morning to report that someone had broken into his penny gum-vending machine and a quantity of pennies were stolen. Hunter Leach, answered the call and advised that the owner be notified.

We, THE PEOPLE by JAY FRANKLIN

THE COMING STRUGGLE FOR HYDRO-ELECTRIC POWER

WASHINGTON, D. C. — The power trust's best friend is the supreme court according to the new dealers.

The Nine Old Men finished their last term together by giving three swift kicks in the teeth to the Roosevelt power program. While this is the first "break" the President has had since he launched his judiciary reform bill, it is a curious example of how our irresponsible judges can stop a great public program for five or six years.

The constitutionality of PWA loans to municipalities which wish to build power plants had been affirmed in five federal circuit courts of appeal so the government asked the court to reject the writ requested by the private power companies seeking to defeat this emergency program.

The court, instead, decided to review the case—thereby delaying part of the federal power program for another year.

Both the government and Electric Bond & Share requested the court to rule on the public utility holding company act (the "death-sentence" clause goes into effect next January), skipping the court of appeals.

The supreme court refused this, thereby delaying settlement of this issue for at least another year. The court likewise refused to expedite final clarification of the right of the Tennessee Valley authority to expand its activities.

Since delay is in every case a victory for the vested interests, the court—so the new dealers allege—is showing its true bias despite the recent liberal 5 to 4 decisions. Whenever control of hydro-electric power is at stake, the Nine Old Men seem to play the game for Wall street. Since the essence of the New Deal is socialization of the power conferred to private profiteers by monopoly grants from public authorities, this power fight is moving to the center of the stage.

President Roosevelt is preparing his counter offensive. Until the senate judiciary committee reports on his court bill, there will be no further administration move in this field. There will be moves in the field of federal power development.

Plans to dispose of the power generated at Bonneville have been delayed temporarily by the efforts of Senator McNary (Republican) of Oregon to have the project run by the U. S. army engineers. The army is instinctively on the side of the biggest bank accounts and army men don't like to be bothered with social or economic details.

If the engineers run Bonneville, its power will be turned over to a handful of Portland industrialists, instead of being spread out to benefit the people of the northwest.

The administration plans call for linking Bonneville and Grand Coulee power, with the Skagit power project near Seattle, to supply electricity to the entire northwest as far south as San Francisco.

At the same time, Senator Norris of Nebraska is introducing his bill to set up seven additional "TVA's" for the unified power, navigation, drought and flood control development of the principal river basins of the country, for the benefit of the people.

The identity of these rivers has been a jealously guarded secret but I am in a position to state that the following developments are proposed: one river on the Atlantic seaboard; upper Ohio and Great Lakes; Tennessee and Cumberland rivers; Missouri River and Red River of the North; The Arkansas, Red and Rio Grande rivers; Colorado river and Pacific coast south of the California-Oregon line; and the Columbia river basin.

Then, too, there is the St. Lawrence-Great Lakes treaty with Canada, still to go before the senate.

In the meantime, the joint hearings on tax dodging de luxe will put the magnates on a very tight spot and will weaken the force of their agitation against the Roosevelt reforms. All in all, it promises to be a hot summer in Washington.

Definition amended since our truly remarkable state department tried to mediate between Loyalist Spain and Nazi Germany; "Hulls rush in where England fears to tread."

Police News

Car of E. L. Kirkpatrick, 1017 Marion drive, Glendale, stolen Saturday night from Fifth and Main, was found last night at Second and Broadway by Officers F. L. Grouard and L. C. Rogers.

Thirty-five alleged offenders were entered on the police records over the week-end, asserted speeders leading the way with 21 arrests, police said.

GRANDMOTHER AT 32

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., (UP)—Mrs. W. Ted Taylor, a resident of nearby Riviera, claims the title of "America's youngest grandmother." She is 32 years old. Her daughter, Mrs. G. E. George, is the mother of a daughter, which weighed 9 3-4 pounds at birth.

14 INJURED IN AUTO CRASHES OVER WEEK-END

Seventeen persons were injured in 14 weekend accidents registered on police and hospital records of Orange county today. There were no fatalities.

Five persons were injured on Coast highway at Bay street, a mile southeast of the Arches intersection Saturday night when cars driven by H. J. Airth, Long Beach, and Catherine Krogh, 41, Long Beach, collided. Airth, Mrs. Airth, Mrs. Anna Brew, Long Beach, Mrs. Krogh and Harry Endover, Santa Monica.

Dr. Robert Pottinger, prominent Pasadena physician, and friend, Meredith Moore, returning from a fishing trip, were cut and bruised near Irvine. They were treated at Santa Ana Valley hospital, yesterday; their car had collided with a tree.

Girl Is Hurt

Mrs. Charles Hudson, 47, Montebello, was in Santa Ana Valley hospital today, following serious cuts and fracture of ribs in an accident yesterday afternoon. Hudson and George Newman, San Diego, who suffered lesser injuries, were treated at the same hospital. Miss Margaret Ryan, about 19, is at the hospital with fractured left leg, following an accident early this morning near San Juan Capistrano. Ernest Bramwell, 20, was taken to county hospital for treatment of fractured ribs, suffered at San Juan Capistrano.

James Bodie, 33, San Diego suffered burns about hands and face yesterday near Tustin when his car caught fire and burned. Fay Garrett, 29, fell from a truck when rounded a curve yesterday and suffered knee, forehead and hand cuts. Both were treated at county hospital.

Drivers Get Tickets

Mrs. Ethel Horton, Tustin, injured this morning near Eddie Martin airport, is being treated for shock and possible internal injuries at St. Joseph hospital, where she was taken by Orange County Ambulance service. Clement Lawson, five, Los Angeles, injured yesterday at Fifth and Bush, was treated at Santa Ana Valley hospital for head and hand cuts. Cars of D. H. Lawson, father, and Mary Treadwell, Santa Ana, collided.

Saturday night at Placentia avenue and North street, three miles east of Anaheim, two drivers were ticketed by highway patrol officers on charges of failing to have operator's license, after Joe Hernandez, 17, Anaheim, was injured. The drivers were Marino Trajo, 22, route 3, Anaheim, and Charles Compise, 23, Placentia. Compise assertedly failed to make boulevard stop, the Trajo car overturning.

Highway Officers Ben Craig and

Dan Adams found only a wrecked car registered to Ray Wallis, San Juan Capistrano, when they investigated an accident Saturday night at Grand avenue and Buena Park road, La Habra. The car had struck a cement wall.

Several other accidents during the weekend did not involve injuries, police said.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE WORK ADVANCES

MANY REPORTS SUBMITTED AT ANNUAL PARLEY

BOSTON, Mass., June 7.—Progress of Christian Science expressed in the organization and recognition of fifty-nine new churches and societies; in sales increases of 66 per cent for the writings of Mary Baker Eddy, Discoverer and Founder of Christian Science; in an increasingly friendly public thought as reflected by legislative bodies when handling measures involving medical and religious freedom; and in much good healing work; featured reports today by church officers at the Annual Meeting of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist.

The election of Judge Clifford P. Smith of Newton, Mass., as Church President for the coming year, and of Edward L. Ripley of Brookline as Treasurer, and Ezra W. Palmer of Marshfield as Clerk, was announced. The President is elected by The Christian Science Board of Directors to serve for one year. His duty is to be presiding officer at the Annual Meeting.

Organized Movement
Clifford P. Smith, C. S. B., LL.B. became interested in Christian Science at Mason City, Iowa, in 1896, where he practiced law before becoming judge of the District Court of Iowa, the superior court of that state. He has been a member of The Mother Church since 1902, and was one of its Executive Members. He had class instruction from an authorized teacher in 1901, Primary instruction from The Christian Science Board of Education in 1903, and Normal instruction from this Board in 1910.

Judge Smith declared in his address that "To insure its strength and success, an organized movement requires (1) a good purpose clearly stated, (2) an intelligent plan for achieving this purpose, and (3) active co-operation in accordance with the plan by the persons who compose the movement."

Growth Revealed
The fact that the Christian Science denomination has 2751 branches was cited and Miss M. Rosamond Wright, Manager of the Department of Branches and Practitioners, reported further for the year, "Good growth in our movement is shown through the organization and recognition of fifty-nine new churches and societies as branches of The Mother Church, and six new university organizations. Twenty-five of these branches are in Europe, thirty in North America, two in Australasia, one in Africa, and one in South America."

The Christian Science Board of Directors, in its message read by the retiring chairman, Mrs. Nelvia E. Ritchie, told Christian Scientists everywhere, "The inspiring reports and testimonies of healing that have come to this Board during the past year give abundant proof of work well done, of progress throughout the movement—give evidence of obedience to Principle, and bear witness that the truth Jesus demonstrated is again understood and made manifest on earth today. While these splendid evidences of progress give cause for rejoicing and we humbly bow our heads in gratitude to God for these proofs of His power and presence, yet as students of Christian Science we all realize that greater works are before us."

Universal Peace
"It is our sacred duty and privilege to uphold righteous government and to know that in reality divine Mind, with its attribute of intelligence, wisdom, justice, and mercy, always guides and controls the avenues and channels through which government is expressed. As we look upon the apparent unrest and fermentation in the affairs of the world today, it is heartening and comforting to know that by obedience to the teachings of our Master we can be conscious of the government of divine Principle, and actually see this government made manifest in human affairs and universal peace established."

Judge Frederick C. Hill, Chairman of The Christian Science Board of Lectureship, reported 3216 lectures had been delivered during the year ended April 30. Of these lectures, 53 were given in Africa, 54 in Australasia, seven in Hawaii, China, Japan and Manila, one in the City of Mexico, eight in Bermuda, Canal Zone and West Indies, 342 in Great Britain and Ireland, 129 in Continental Europe and Scandinavia, and 2722 in Canada, the United States and Alaska.

Tells Appreciation
Edward L. Ripley, Church Treasurer, expressed gratitude for the increased individual activity accomplished by members of The Mother Church and added that "In disbursing the funds so generously contributed for flood relief, excellent service was rendered by the Committees on Publication and the various relief workers. That the relief extended was greatly appreciated is evidenced by the fol-

General Hugh S. JOHNSON

WASHINGTON, D. C. — The wages-and-hours bill plus its high pressure presentation to the Black-Connerly committee is like the document that presented the court-reorganization bill to congress—"lick, too damned slick."

Its label, "Not an N. R. A. or anything like an N. R. A." pays scant respect to the intelligence of the committee. The bill sets up a board, empowers it to hold hearings, to take advice from advisory committees of labor, industry and the public and then, regardless of hearings or advice, to fix wages and hours for the whole or any part of any industry in the United States, and to prescribe a label signifying compliance. If that isn't "anything like N. R. A.," what is it like?

The impression is studiously given that the bill does not affect local or intrastate industries—"any state may use...sweated labor for products of home consumption." There is not a word in the bill exempting any local industry—not even agriculture.

On the contrary, section 8 provides that whenever an intrastate local producer, or industry, sells goods in its own state in competition with goods produced in another state on higher labor standards and shipped in, "the board shall make an order" to the particular local employer or to the whole intrastate industry to cease paying lower wages or working longer hours. That raises the principal intra-state headaches of N. R. A.—local saw-mills, abattoirs, canneries, etc. The South had better wake up to this pronto or it will find itself sold down the river to a renewal of some of its problems of reconstruction days.

Sales point No. 3 is: "This bill does not plunge the nation headlong into a rigid and widespread policy of regulating wages and hours." But the board is given unlimited discretion to fix, by regulatory fiat, maximum hours and minimum wages for every industry in the United States and it is charged to "extend (the bill's provisions) to all employers...as rapidly as possible." If that "no plunge" stuff is a candid presentation of a complex bill being given the bum's rush through a bewildered committee, the Devil's an acolyte.

The implied alibi for that is, "Oh, congress, in the act itself, sets maxima and minima." Oh yeah!—"except insofar as another maximum (minimum) is established by such employment by regulation or order of the board," which, of course, means that it is the board which fixes these limits—not congress.

The plea is that what we have here is the approved case of congress setting up limits within which a commission may vary individual cases by applying a clear rule prescribed by congress.

But, as just seen, the boards sets its own limits. The so-called "rule" is—no minimum wage so high as to curtail employment nor above what gives a "minimum standard of living necessary for health and efficiency" and no workweek shortened beyond what is necessary for "health, efficiency and well-being" or beyond what will curtail earning power.

Of course, that is no rule at all. It says only, "Don't change the limits fixed by yourself to such an extent as, in your opinion, will curtail employment or earnings." It is just a mess of words obscuring the absence of any standard, any limit or any rule at all—and a complete passing of the buck to the board with plenary powers. This is a shotgun bill full of adroit obscurities, jokers and legalistic devices—what the President's tax message called "clever little schemes." There is room here to discuss only about one-tenth of them.

It pains this writer to pen a measure advancing a principle to which he gave the extreme effort of his life, but it would pain him more to see that principle go again to grotesque failure. Also, slicker law-drafting pains him at least as much.

DOCTOR TESTIFIES IN PARKER TRIAL

NEWARK, N. J., June 7.—(UP)—A physician who performed an autopsy on the body of Charles A. Lindbergh Jr., for whose murder Bruno Richard Hauptmann was executed, testified in federal court today in a defense effort to corroborate portions of the "confession" which Ellis H. Parker and his son are accused of extorting from Paul H. Wendel.

Parker, chief of Burlington county, N. J., detectives, and his son are charged with conspiracy in connection with the abduction and torture of Wendel, whose statement delayed Hauptmann's execution for three days.

Dr. Charles H. Mitchell, former Mercer county physician, testified that he made a post mortem examination of the body May 12, 1937, and said he found it impossible to determine the child's sex because of "general decomposition."

Following messages among the many received:

"One expressed gratitude for the 'loving service rendered to both Scientists and non-Scientists.'

"Another wrote: 'I shall always be mindful of the joyful manner in which this assistance was given when no other help was obtainable.'

"A third said: 'The manifestation of joy and brotherly love by the workers...is most inspiring and is noticed and spoken of in praise by persons knowing little or nothing of Christian Science.'"

WPA PLANS TO OPERATE NINE PLAY GROUNDS

Nine summer playgrounds will be operated in Santa Ana this year under auspices of the WPA recreational organization. Use of the playgrounds of Santa Ana schools was authorized today by the Santa Ana board of education.

Schools where summer recreational programs will be conducted daily, except Sundays, are: Willard Junior high school, Lathrop Junior high school, Edison, Franklin, Logan, Fremont, Delhi and Roosevelt.

According to Truscott T. Lindsey, director of the recreational program, the summer playground program will get under way June 21, after the closing of schools.

One of the outstanding features of this year's programs will be the swimming pool to be operated as a part of the general program and exclusive of the other playgrounds. The swimming pool will be operated as a joint school board and WPA enterprise.

Blanchard Beatty, recently appointed by the school board, will be in charge of the pool. He will be assisted by four people assigned from the WPA, all of whom will have American Red Cross certificates. All playground instructors, according to Lindsey, must be certified for first aid work by the Red Cross before they are assigned to playground work.

Lindsey said that in addition to the regular athletic events scheduled for the summer, each playground will offer instruction in pottery making, wood carving, rhythm, and instruction in metal and leather craft. If the demand is sufficient, similar craft classes will be established at the playgrounds for adults, Lindsey said.

Santa Ana Girl To Get Degree

Lucille Schieber of Santa Ana, will be among the 120 graduates at the University of Redlands, tomorrow. She will receive the Bachelor of Arts degree. Miss Schieber is a graduate of Santa Ana high school and junior college. She is a member of Kappa Pi Zeta sorority and this year was chosen for the annual concert tour of the women's glee club. She has received her California state teaching credentials for elementary and junior high school work.

To Every Owner of An Electric Refrigerator These 2 Facts Are of First Importance:

FACT 1

The new KELVINATOR is plus-powered. It has as much as double the cooling capacity of other well known refrigerators of equal size.

The new KELVINATOR runs only half as many minutes per day — during the rest of the time it maintains low temperature, using no current at all.

Because of the two above important facts experienced refrigerator buyers are replacing their old refrigerators with the PLUS-POWERED KELVINATOR. Once you know these facts, you can judge the basic refrigeration value of any refrigerator. Ask TURNER'S to demonstrate these two points—know the fundamentals of modern refrigerators.

Townsend Topics

By W. F. Rockwell

(Editor's Note: The comment and opinions of W. F. Rockwell, as appearing in this column are not necessarily those of The Register.)

Boy! Oh! Boy! Oh! Boy! "Don't we got fun?" Twelve high up Townsend aides resign because of Dr. Townsend's ideas on the Supreme Court issue! Well now, boys and girls, don't get scared. Just relax and "wait till the clouds roll by." The Townsend plan is so thoroughly implanted and embedded into the consciousness of America that nothing can stop it from going right on, growing stronger and finally winning the victory hoped for in the past and now nearing actual realization.

What benefit is it to anyone to worry over anything Dr. Townsend says or does? He is sincere and honest, and has shown his master mind in bringing the plan he started to its present place, in spite of almost insuperable obstacles that have interfered in the past, and which he knows will continue to impede his progress in future. Is it right, is it fair, to criticize him now while he is carrying this terrible load that probably no other man could endure? And all this without any ulterior, selfish motive, but for the satisfaction of helping humanity to a place of greater well-being. Why not be true, strong, fearless with him, instead of hindering him with little petty doubts and weak words?

Everyone is inclined to like their own ideas that others may not like. Nature made us all different in size, shape, color and disposition. So why expect our ideas to be alike? If the twelve resigned because they did not agree with Dr. Townsend, can we look to them to take his place and carry the plan to victory? There is not a man on earth to take Dr. Townsend's place in this movement, so why not back him to the limit, regardless of anything he says or does? We know his plan is eternally right and will succeed, no matter what anyone thinks or says in opposition. "The Townsend plan will succeed. We therefore pledge our allegiance to its principles, TO ITS FOUNDER, DR. FRANCIS E. TOWNSEND, to its leaders, and to all LOYAL co-workers, and rededicate ourselves to maintain the democratic spirit and form of government in America."

Club 2 meets tonight in Townsend Hall, 508 W. 4th street. Refreshments will be served.

H. G. Wilcox, who worked with Arthur L. Johnson in Washington, D. C., on the General Welfare Act, H.R. 4199, will speak at Orange Club on South Glassell street to-

SEN. SHEPPARD ASKS W. C. T. U. TO AID PEACE

WASHINGTON, June 7.—(UP)—Sen. Morris Sheppard, D., Tex., today urged the world convention of the Woman's Christian Temperance union to drive for world peace.

Sheppard, co-author of the national prohibition act, told delegates last night that "no finer benefit could befall mankind than a union of the forces of peace and prohibition against war and alcoholic drink."

Lucille Elaine Hinshaw of the University of Oklahoma told the convention that 7000 members of the university as well as "the boys and girls of our high schools and colleges are right in the line of fire x x x receiving the major impact of this devastating bombardment from the breweries and distilleries."

She said liquor interests spent $25,000,000 in advertising to promote drinking last year and exhorted the "youth of every land to join now with the youth of America in the work of exterminating the liquor traffic throughout the world."

It Seems To Me

by

HEYWOOD BROWN

One of the flaws in our democracy is the fact that a national election is treated too much in the spirit of a tennis match. The winner does not truly receive a mandate, but gets only one leg on the trophy. After a fifteen-minute rest he has to come out on the courts again and fight the whole thing over. Or, to vary the metaphor, Mr. Roosevelt has received not a blank check but a rubber one.

There is rebellion in the senate and the house. For the most part the Democrats who are seeking to sabotage the New Deal explain their treachery on the ground that they do not like the plan to liberalize the courts. They assert that this issue did not come up in the election.

This contention is something less than accurate, for though the precise details of the plan were not put forward until after election, Mr. Roosevelt certainly had given broad intimations that he intended to attack the Supreme Court oligarchy by legislative methods.

I have always felt, and I feel now, that the court plan constitutes an excellent yardstick by which one may separate the liberals from the Lippmanns and the progressives from the Pinchots.

Opposed to All Democracy
The men who are fighting democracy on the bench are opposed to it in all the other branches of the government. To be sure, in the case of certain senators, particularly those from the "Roten Boroughs," the assertion is made that they supported other New Deal proposals and merely wilted under the last straw of the plan to unpack the court. But these are camels whose backs were never strong at best, and one may vote and vote and yet continue to keep his fingers crossed.

I think it is significant that many of the bitterest foes of judicial reform are to be found in the block which would "broaden the base of the income tax."

This is a proposal which suggests that those who lie prostrate might very well get on their feet again if only they would take a hard tug at their own bootstraps.

Members of a house committee have recently shown grave concern for the delicate feelings of those who may be called upon to testify as to tax evasion. After all, this is not an election year. Certain gentlemen in Washington are living in a fool's paradise and trying to console themselves with the thought that 1938 is a long way off. A lobbyist is always at a legislator's elbow, while the voters are well around the corner.

Of late I find even in high places support for the doctrine that rich men have a right to dodge their responsibilities by seeking loopholes. The argument goes that the government is at fault for not having been smart enough to note the crevices. But just let the government attempt legislation to block the rat holes, and you will find these same men in violent conflict against the measures.

There are many patriots who profess a willingness to lay down their lives for their country, but they have a great reluctance to put a dollar on the line. People cheat the government and save their conscience by thinking that they have withheld just dues from some vague abstraction.

Taking Needy Off Relief Rolls

As a matter of fact, in reality they are taking men and women off relief rolls. They are snatching bread from the hungry and clothes from the tattered. Indeed, the evaders are no higher in the moral scale than those who rob a poor box.

I think the income tax is by far the most just of all levies and that it ought to be based on capacity to pay. For all their weeping and wailing the well-to-do have never made adequate contributions.

I don't expect anybody to toss his cap in the air over the privilege of paying an income tax. June 15 will find my hat on my head, but just the same I think it is fantastic that one should find more grumbling around some far from barren table in a back room than was ever heard in a front line trench.

LOCAL CHURCH GROUP HONORED BY CONVENTION

An unusual honor and distinction came to the Women's Society of the First Baptist church when their year book for 1936-1937, "On the Master's Waterways", was awarded a cum laude prize at the National Baptist convention in Philadelphia recently.

In making the award, Miss Elizabeth Fensom, of the Council of Promotion and Finance, stated that the judges declared the book was so far superior to others submitted, and likely to be so in years to come, that they had taken it out of the regular competition, to award it this special honor.

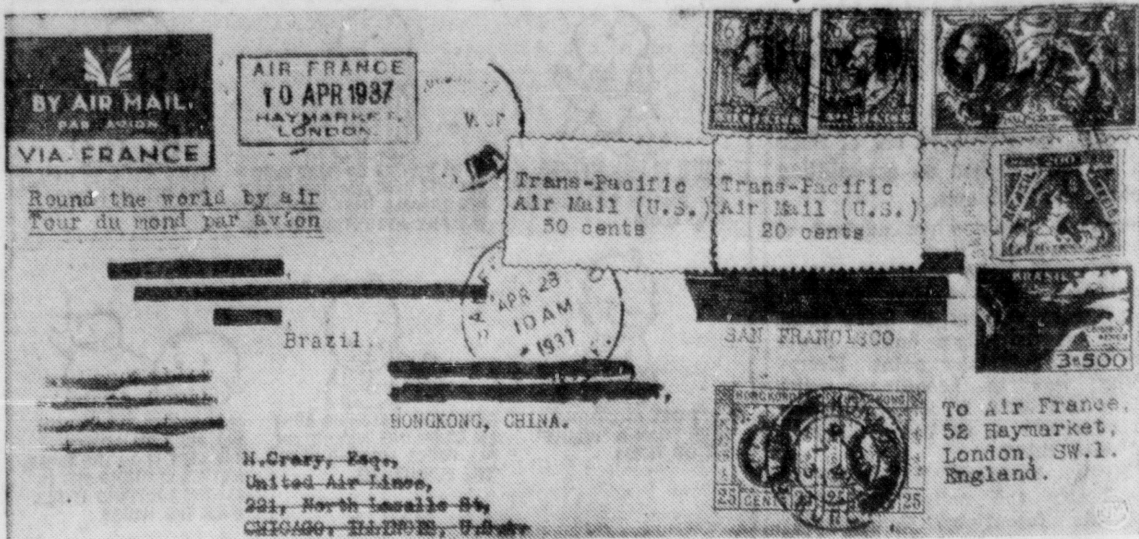

The local society has won three first prize within the last four years, in national contests. The program committee responsible for the fine book consisted of Mesdames Earl L. Morris, Albert F. Hill, John E. Swanke, L. Carleton Fairbanks and Harry S. Harlow. Mrs. J. P. Williams was editor of the year book, and Miss Lula Minter president of the society.

Beach Production Is Well Received

LAGUNA BEACH, June 7.—

Two capacity audiences greeted the performance, given during the week end, of "This Thing Called Love," presented by the Laguna Beach Community Players, at their playhouse on Ocean avenue. The Edwin Burke skit, directed by Haring Griggs, contained many hilarious situations and much clever dialogue, due advantage of which was taken by the performers, who included Shirley O'Brien, Rose Bernhard, Sallie Barnett, Peggy Shope, Margot Goddard, Haring Griggs, Paul Taylor, Rushmore Shope, and Earl Ostrom. Special scenic effects were created, and lighting placed, by Charles McCullough and Volney Tanner; Claire McCullough was costumer; and business details were in the capable hands of Lytle Rankin. "This Thing" completed a trio of plays staged by Haring Griggs during the spring season, all three of which evoked more than perfunctory comment, and were covered by Hollywood talent scouts on the lookout for budding or even flowering genius.

First Letter to Girdle Globe by Airmail

Letters have girdled the globe by air before, but the many-stamped and much-postmarked envelope above is claimed to be the first to make the round trip by way of regular airmail routes. It started from London and returned 40 days later. Meanwhile it had crossed the Atlantic to Brazil, traveled north to San Francisco, crossed the Pacific to Manila, thence to Hongkong and back to Europe by way of India and Marseilles.

AMERICAN EXPEDITIONS WILL HAVE RINGSIDE SEATS FOR SUN'S FULL ECLIPSE AT SEA

By HILLIER KREIGHBAUM
United Press Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON, June 7.—(UP)—Two American expeditions will have ringside seats tomorrow for the 424-second eclipse—longest in 12 centuries yet visible to fewer persons than more ordinary ones because its 8800-mile path lies chiefly in the Pacific Ocean.

The phenomenon might be called "eclipse" because it starts in Asia on June 9, crosses the International date line and ends on June 8 in Peru, the land of the sun-worshipping Incas, just at sunset.

The U. S. Navy-National Geographic Society expedition has established headquarters on the uninhabited Phoenix Island, 180 miles south of the equator. The Hayden Planetarium - Grace Eclipse Expedition will make observations from three camps set up in Peru.

Eclipse observations give important clues regarding the chemical elements existing on the sun, how they are affected by great heat and very distant stars are like. The sun itself is just a small star, surpassed by many of the brilliant ones in the skies.

Moon Close To Earth
"The factors which make this eclipse so unusual is that on June 8, the moon will be about as close to earth as it ever comes, namely, about 222,000 miles," explained Dr. Clyde Fisher, leader of the Hayden Planetarium of the American Museum of Natural History, New York City, before his departure.

"At the same time the earth is about as far from the sun as it ever gets, namely, about 94,000,000 miles. The eclipse occurs when the centers of the sun, the moon and the earth are in a straight line, and the closer the moon is to us the bigger an object it becomes and the longer it hides the sun, especially when the sun is almost at its maximum distance from the earth."

To insure that low hanging clouds do not eclipse the eclipse, the Hayden Planetarium - Grace eclipse expedition has obtained the services of Major Albert W. Stevens, who in 1935 with Capt. Orvil A. Anderson set the world's altitude record with a stratosphere flight. Major Stevens, one of the recognized photographic experts of the army air corps, will take photographs of the eclipse from an airplane placed at the expedition's disposal by Pan-American Airways.

According to present plans, Major Stevens will fly between 25,000 and 30,000 feet over Chimbo, Peru, in the very center of the eclipse's path to take the photographs.

Dr. Fisher will take motion pictures of the eclipse. An expert in this field, he took motion pictures of the 1930 and 1932 eclipses.

One of the Peru camps has been established in the Cerro de of Virginia observatory and scientific leader of the expedition; Dr. Paul A. McNally, S. J., director of the Georgetown College observatory; Dr. Irvine C. Gardner, photographic expert of the National Bureau of Standards; Dr. F. K. Richtmyer, Cornell University; Dr. Theodore Dunham, Jr., Mount Wilson observatory; Charles G. Thompson, president of the Foundation for Astrophysical Research, New York City; John E. Willis, U. S. naval observatory; Richard H. Stewart, staff representative for National Geographic Society; Walter Brown, radio engineer, New York City; M. S. Adams, radio engineer, San Francisco; George Hicks, radio announcer, New York City, all of the National Broadcasting company; Lieut. Herman A. Gross, U. S. navy surgeon, and Lieut. T. R. Williamson, commander of the Avocet.

MONKS ASKED TO KILL ST. BERNARDS

GRENOBLE, France, June 7.—(UP)—Dr. Jules Bremond, father of the girl recently killed by the famous St. Bernard dogs of the Alps, asked today that the monks kill the dogs which attacked the child and discontinue breeding St. Bernards.

The attack has caused much controversy in the St. Bernard district. Some people say the breed has degenerated, and cite instances of viciousness by dogs. They say that gendarmes have been forced to kill several and that others are kept in confinement by the monks.

Cameras To Filter Color
Three large telescope cameras, which can follow the sun's motion across the sky, will photograph the eclipse. Filters will be used to photograph the phenomena in the light of a single color. New color plates, never before used in eclipse work, will picture the eclipse in natural color. So sensitive are the expedition's photographic plates that a special ice-box was carried in which to store them so that the tropical conditions will not damage them.

Especially designed for the U. S. Navy-National Geographic Society expedition, a disk with portions cut away will revolve at 100 revolutions a minute in front of a photographic plate in one of the cameras. This device makes it possible to photograph the corona with long exposure, registering the faint outer fringes without over-exposing the brighter portions near the sun.

All the delicate instruments of the expedition had to be landed through the surf of the Phoenix Islands by two native Hawaiian boys who are expert divers and swimmers. Their only job on the trip was to see that the equipment arrived safely and then, after the show was over, returned to the navy seaplane tender Avocet for the return trip. The Avocet is the "mother ship" of the expedition and will stand by during the entire time that the party is on the islands.

The four times when the sand and moon's edges appear to meet will be timed with great accuracy through a special camera by Capt. J. F. Hellweg, superintendent of the U. S. naval observatory in Washington. This work will obtain a check on the movements of the earth around the sun and of the moon around the earth. These movements form the basis of the whole time system.

An artist, Charles Bittinger of Washington, will use a special technique to paint a picture of the eclipse depicting both form and color as the human eye sees it.

Other members of the Hayden Planetarium - Grace eclipse expedition, beside Dr. Fisher and Major Stevens, include Prof. William H. Barton, Jr., associate curator of the Hayden Planetarium; Hans Christian Adamson of the American Museum of Natural History; Dr. Serge Korff, research assistant of the Carnegie Institute; D. Owen Stephens, painter; Miss Dorothy A. Bennett, assistant curator of the Hayden Planetarium; Dana K. Bailey of Arizona university and Charles H. Coles, staff photographer of American Museum of Natural History.

Members of the U. S. Navy-National Geographic Society party, in addition to Captain Hellweg and Bittinger, are Dr. S. A. Mitchell, director of the University

BOND ELECTION LIKELY TO BE SET TOMORROW

The stage apparently was set today for calling the $2,500,000 bond election tomorrow when the supervisors convene, and indications were that the election date will be set for July 21.

This prediction by County Clerk J. M. Backs, who has charge of elections, indicated that a week remains in which to register for the election.

If it is held July 21, the 40-day period preceding, during which registrations are closed, would start next Monday, and next Saturday would be the final day of registration.

Los Angeles bond attorneys who have been examining the local bond proceedings to pass on their legality, expect to have the report ready for the county supervisors' adoption tomorrow.

WIFE ASSERTS MATE HIT HER

Music and a banjo crashing against the top of her head did not soothe Mrs. Carmen Zuniga, Stanton, today, she told Deputy District Atty. Clarence Sprague, as she prepared to ask for an assault and battery complaint against Valentino Zuniga, her husband.

Deputies who investigated at Mrs. Zuniga's complaint, reported the banjo made a large knot on her head; it also cut her and skinned her leg. Mrs. Zuniga said her husband had been drinking. She carried a letter from Sprague in which Sprague referred to a previous offense—namely, with the banjo, however—and in which he advised her to explain her troubles at the district attorney's office. "I have another reason for seeing him now," she said.

TORSO MYSTERY CONFRONTS POLICE

CLEVELAND, June 7.—(UP)—The ninth torso-murder mystery in two years confronted Cleveland police today.

They sought the identity of a lime-eaten skeleton, legs and arms severed, and its possible connection with the saga of the "Mad Butcher of Kingsbury Run" blamed in the bizarre slayings of eight persons, only one of whom was identified.

The latest torso was discovered wrapped in a rotted burlap sack, under a bridge abutment, almost in the shadow of downtown Cleveland.

Coroner S. R. Gerber, believed the body had been that of a woman. It was the first of the torso murders in which lime was known to have been used to hasten obliteration. Severance of all four limbs appeared to have been performed with the same surgical skill which marked the dismemberings of other victims.

Inside the sack in which the body was discovered was a yellowed scrap from a Cleveland newspaper, carrying a local theatrical review. The clipping was dated June 5. Detectives checked this date against the show which was reviewed and found it appeared on that date in 1935.

MEN ARRESTED
Joe Estrada, 24, Independencia colony, and Tom Vales, 46, Gardena service station owner, were arrested last night on drunk driving charges filed by Orange county officers. Estrada, arrested by Deputy Sheriff's Walt Dungan and Fred Swayze, was accused of turning out his lights to escape capture, then running the car into a ditch. He was arrested at Stanton, Madano Lopez, 55, Rancho Santa Ana, was arrested on the same charge early yesterday.

ALL LAGUNA BEACH SHAKEN BY "MYSTERY" DYNAMITE BLAST

Peace-loving residents of Laguna Beach were brought out of their beds with a "bang" shortly after 2 a. m. today, when an ear-splitting crash shook their homes, rattling cupboards and windows.

Police rushed around, trying to find the cause of the disturbance. Residents of the peaceful little village kept the wires hot, as the police desk sergeant answered frantic inquiries.

"What is it, an invasion?" "Who dropped that bomb?" "Better phone the army, hadn't you?"

The desk sergeant, just as bewildered as anyone else, had his hands—and ears—full.

Clef of Police Abe Johnson slept through the whole ruckus, "I guess I'm a pretty sound sleeper," he remarked today when advised of the disturbance.

"It seems that at 2 a. m.," he continued, "five charges of dynamite were set off to blast rocks loose on the city's outfall sewer project off Heisler point. Everything was in accordance with plans laid by J. H. Kruly, engineer in charge, 2 a. m. being the hour of low tide."

Kruly, however, had forgotten to notify the police department of his intentions. Consequently, the police and the citizenry were greatly shocked—"to say the least," the chief added.

Advanced students of the Vera Getty Dance studio scored a success Saturday night in the Junior Stars Revue at the high school, given as a benefit for the student loan fund of the Junior College.

Highlight of the evening was presentation of the spectacular William Tell Overture, an original dance routine by Miss Getty and featuring 10 dancers. Dancers in the overture, presented as a finale of the program, were: Ralph Guldage, Volma Stroud, Eloise Jacobs, Beverly Dawson, Ruth Whitney, Doris Morilla, Lorraine and Iris Crawford, Lorraine Seavy and Jeff Whitlen.

Other numbers on the program included: Velna Stroud, acrobatic dance; Lola Marie Harmon and Robert Harmon, Apache dance; Lorraine Seavy, Spanish dance and classical tap dance; Crawford Sisters, specialty dance; Beverly Dawson, Laguna Beach, tap dance; Ralph Guldage, specialty tap dance; June Tway, toe tap dance; and Ralph Guldage and June Tway in a tango presentation.

During the evening Miss Getty introduced her guest, Dot Remy, one of the world's greatest girl dancers who has just completed a three-year engagement in Europe and is in Hollywood at present where she will fulfill a motion picture engagement.

Loan Is Made
The case, based upon a planter's agreement made between Gaston Bastanchury and the Union Oil company in 1925, by which Bastanchury planted 2000 acres of oil company lands adjoining the Bastanchury rancho, was presented to Judge Ames by the attorneys today in chronological fashion, A. P. G. Steffes for Mrs. Bastanchury, and W. H. Cosgrove for The Times.

Their statements showed that Bastanchury assigned this planter's agreement to the Times-Mirror company November 26, 1929, to secure the $500,000 loan.

Mrs. Bastanchury made her $300,000 loan for taxes and bond interest to the ranch company January 2, 1931, on which day A. L. Lathrop, Union Bank and Trust company official, became secretary of the ranch company.

On January 25, Gaston Bastanchury assigned his planter's agreement again, this time to the ranch company, which on the same date issued its crop mortgage to Maria Bastanchury for $224,522.21 covering the 200 Union Oil acres in addition to various other parcels. The Times crop mortgage covered only the Union Oil company acreage.

On February 2, 1931, the ranch company assigned the planter's agreement to the Union Bank and Trust Company.

Receiver Appointed
On June 29, 1931, the ranch company gave Mrs. Bastanchury a supplemental crop mortgage making a total of $300,000.

On October 3, following, Edgar Speer was appointed receiver for the ranch company by the state courts and took possession. On February 19, 1932, involuntary bankruptcy proceedings were filed against the ranch company and Walter Little was named federal receiver, succeeding Speer. On March 21 the ranch was adjudged bankrupt, and has not yet been discharged.

During that proceeding the Times-Mirror company filed petition to sell its interest in the planter's agreement, which was authorized. The sale was made to The Times October 27, 1932. On November 6, that year, the ranch company was allowed to abandon its interest in the planter's agreement.

The defense, Cosgrove stated, not only holds its lien ahead of Mrs. Bastanchury's crop mortgage, but also raises the point that under the law, she must first satisfy her lien against such parcels as are covered by only her lien, before proceeding against property covered by both liens.

LOCAL WOMEN ATTEND PARLEY

Mrs. Cora Prather, president of Santa Ana Altrusa club, who will be district representative at Altrusa club's convention in Mexico City this month, was in Pasadena Saturday night for a pre-convention affair given by Pasadena club in honor of delegates.

Attending with Mrs. Prather was a former Santa Ana, Miss Elena Rodriguez, Martinez, who was known as Helen Rodriguez when she attended school in this city. She is president of Altrusa club in Guadalajara, Mex. Her aunt, Marta Gualupe Munoz Arreola, a plantation owner, also a member of the Guadalajara club, attended Saturday night's meeting.

Miss Rexie Bennett of Los Angeles, Altrusa governor of the district and Dr. Dena Thompson of Pasadena, vice governor, were others attending the meeting which was held in the home of Dr. Mary Manny, president of Pasadena Altrusa club.

Mrs. Prather, second vice-governor of the district, will go to the convention as proxy for Miss Bennett. She will go to Mexico by special train in company with Miss Martinez and her aunt, leaving June 17. The convention will be in progress June 22-25 in and near Mexico City. There are three organized Altrusa clubs in Mexico, it was reported.

Dr. I. J. Condit, horticulturist from the University of California, Berkeley, will present an illustrated talk on Avocado and subtropical fruit observations in Hawaii and the Orient at the Avocado Growers' meeting at the Farm Bureau hall at 6:30 p. m. today.

Harold E. Wahlberg, county agricultural agent of the United States Department of Agriculture, will preside.

Realtors, Title Group To Picnic

The Santa Ana Realty Board will have a joint picnic with members of the local title companies Wednesday, June 16, at 4:30 p. m., at Irvine park, it was announced by Oliver Lindemeyer, secretary of the board, today.

The feature of the event is to be a ball game between the board and the title company. This will be followed by an old-fashioned picnic dinner for the members and their families.

Boys' Leaders To Be Honored

Twenty-one leaders of the Y. M. C. A. boys' work activities will receive recognition for their work at the annual banquet at the Y headquarters at 6:15 p. m. today, Herbert Thomas, boys' work secretary, announced.

Certificates of merit will be presented to the leaders who have been in charge of the activities this year. The recognition meeting will conclude the regular work of the Y. M. C. A.

Those who are to be presented with certificates include: Abe Bergseter, Robert Frias, Fred Rivas, Harold C. Tolkein, Kenneth Nissley, Ed Budd, Robert Korff, Willard Lutz, Robert Perry, Charles Marshall.

Vincent L. Humeston, Leon Loderbach, R. J. Rowland, Bob Hafer, J. D. Galt, Gene Griest, Glenn Larson, Carroll Ault, Joseph Galt, Dave Hunter and R. H. McArthur.

Pickering Issues
Dog License News

Licenses for all dogs over six months old and harbored in Santa Ana, will become delinquent June 30, Poundmaster Ed D. Pickering warned today. The cost of licenses is $1 each regardless of the dog's sex.

Dog owners may obtain licenses at the city clerk's office in the city hall, or from Pickering, who can be reached by calling Santa Ana 0657-W. The license must be attached to the dog for proper identification and all dogs must be kept at home at night.

MONDAY MUSINGS

Did you see the street sweeper bringing up the rear of the Horse Show parade Saturday? It was right in there like an old-fashioned steam calliope, if for a different purpose.

Jimmy Coates took a pair of shellackings in the San Joaquin Valley league last week. And who do you think turned the trick first? None other than the old boy fren' Ira DeBusk of Irvine, who made a flying trip to Lindsay and turned in a 3-2 decision over Santa Ana's ex-ace, Lionel Brown of Porterville beat Coates again Friday.

Louie (Call Me Novikoff) Neva is now battling a cool 373 in the Western association and is a contender for the league championship. Joe Rodgers gets a flash from Ponca City that Looie has been fined twice by the management, once for missing a signal from Manager Art Veltman; once for driving out a bit when he was ordered to pass up the pitch. But they're about ready to give the keys of the city to the big Russian, for he's hitting 'em from town to town.

Announcer Eddie Marble pulled this nifty at the horse show: "This magnificent animal (the No. 1 horse) is owned by Mrs. Yorba Linda." He meant Mrs. Mable Yorba of Santa Ana canyon.

From the Vital Statistics column: Intentions to wed: Robert Griffith Williams, 26, Fullerton; Melva Roquet, 24, of Anaheim. She's the tennis star.

Chaffey high schoolers want to change their colors from blue and gold to red and white in order to avoid conflict with neighboring teams. They forget that Santa Ana entering Citrus Belt league this fall has red and white.

Wilbur Fogleman of the Riverside Press-Enterprise, picking up this corner's report of National Night league managers complaining that inland umpires are "homers," counters that inland teams think the same about Prexy Walt Wentz's National division guessers. So let's drop the subject. An umpire never gets a break.

Applecheeked Dave Webb, who led all National Night league hitters last year and prior to that won the same honor in the San Joaquin Valley and Santa Ana City circuits, is just a bench-warmer at Anaheim.

Roy Hahne of Orange, current leader of the National league, is honeymooning.

Promoter Sam Sampson of the Orange County Athletic club says he would throw his arena to the professional boxers if he thought they would outdraw the shamateurs. Business hasn't been so good with the back-busters.

Joe Rodgers says he's going to raise hell if Bob Fowler, San Bernardino's star southpaw, hits his uniform when he delivers the ball when the Ponys invade Huntington Beach Tuesday. I'll insist that the umpires make Fowler tape his pants," says Joe. Rodgers also maintains that Morse of Anaheim and Larimer of Orange are pitching the ball illegally. "And Morrill is no innocent party," he adds.

TOP TEAMS OF O. C. LOOP IN BREATHERS

Front flight clubs draw second divisions tonight in the Orange County Night Ball league.

Brea's Lions, conquerors of the mighty Irvine Beapickers, invade San Juan Capistrano. Jolted out of first place for the first time in a year, Irvine remains home to deal with Olive. The climbing Holly Sugar company goes to Yorba Linda. Brea, Irvine and Holly Sugar are all heavily favored. Tustin and Fullerton, tied for fourth, clash in Fullerton. Standings:

ORANGE COUNTY NIGHT LEAGUE

Brea	5 0 1.000
Holly Sugar Company	4 1 .800
Irvine	4 1 .800
Tustin	3 2 .600

FIREMEN PLAY 5-5 TIE IN 15 INNINGS

FULLERTON — Parading five pitchers to the mound, the Fullerton Firemen and the Colburn Brokers battled to a 15-inning, 5-5 deadlock here yesterday.

Clifford Perry, veteran Ozark right-hander; Bus DeVolder, sensational junior collegian; Bill Thaten, erratic southpaw, and Hiram Perry, another Arkansas importation, pitched for the Firemen.

Although the parade of pitchers was for the six baseball talent scouts who witnessed the exhibition, Lawrence Robinson, Yellow-jacket captain, and Roe White, centerfielder, stole the show with brilliant defensive work.

Dick Bartlett, peppery New York Giants' shortstop off to a good start in the National league home run derby, is using one of Mel Ott's bats.

HARRY OLSON ACES NO. 4 AT COUNTRY CLUB

The year's first hole-in-one was on record today at the Santa Ana Country club.

Harry Olson, proprietor of a Sycamore street barber shop, made it with a spoon on the 194-yard fourth hole Sunday. In his four-some were Dr. A. H. Domann, J. W. (Bill) Beach and Mark Lassiter.

It was the fourth time in the history of the course that the long fourth had been holed from the tee. The late George Shattuck did it in January, 1925. A ten-year interval followed before L. J. Bush, and aceed the hole in March, 1935. Two months later, Don Woodington repeated.

Olson's drive was high and landed on the edge of the green. The ball rolled straight across the grass and into the cup, which was on the far side of the green. The shot helped Olson post a 43-39-81.

More than a hundred country club members have entered the President's Cup tournament, according to Professional Roy Renwick. Competition gets under way late this week. M. N. Thompson is defending champion.

Representing the Santa Ana club, Mrs. J. K. McDonald of Huntington Beach led in Class B in the ninth annual Santa Catalina Island women's golf championships yesterday.

Week-end winners:
Saturday medal play (scratch to 12): C. D. Holmes Jr., 70-61; W. C. Fletcher, 74-65; A. E. Watson, 75-12-66; Ted Burkett, 73-6-67; Handicaps 13-24: Bob Fernandez, 81-18-63; Bill Cole, 84-19-65; M. N. Thompson, 79-13-66; Carl Mock, 88-21-67; William Rohrbacher, 82-15-67.
Blind bogey (74): Le Roy Burns, F. E. Farnsworth, William Jeffrey Jr. and Hugh Shields tied.
Sunday's blind bogey, punching for handicaps: H. L. Miller and Ralph Culp, blind bogey; L. D. Coffing and Dick Ewert, low net; Mrs. L. J. Bushard, Mrs. Don Andrews and E. Pickett.

GLOVER BUILDS NEW ELEVEN AT ANAHEIM

ANAHEIM.—Dick Glover's Anaheim Colonists, runners-up in the Orange county major league football race last fall, are set for their Sunset league schedule.

Coach Glover is now working with his tentative "first string" in a modified spring practice. Seven of next year's first eleven are lettermen.

Those returning to inaugurate Anaheim's Sunset league program include John Beat and Jimmy Nunz, ends; Bill Llewellyn and Bill Ross, guards; Melvin Gledhill, center; Red Mills, tackle, and Keith Beebe, back.

Indications are that the Anaheim team will be the heaviest in recent years. The front ranks will average 179 while the backfield will scale 163.

With several 200-pounders, Everett McDonald, 240, and Steve Muro, 220, Glover can boost the tonnage of his front ranks considerably.

What appears to be the Colonists' first string, reads from left to right: Beat, 150; Ed Moore, 250; Llewellyn, 165; Gledhill, 175; Ross, 170; Mills, 170, and Nickles, 170.

In the backfield Glover will have Don Dickinson, 165; Bud Tyerman, 165; Beebe, 150, and Don Wallace, 170, together with several reserves up from the lightweight squad.

Wallace, the heaviest man in the backfield, is the fastest. He can run the century in 10.6 in football togs, while Dickinson is an exceptionally accurate passer. Glover will have to rebuild his entire eleven as the eleven men who started the Orange game last fall are lost through graduation.

KIEFER, WOLFE SET SWIMMING RECORDS

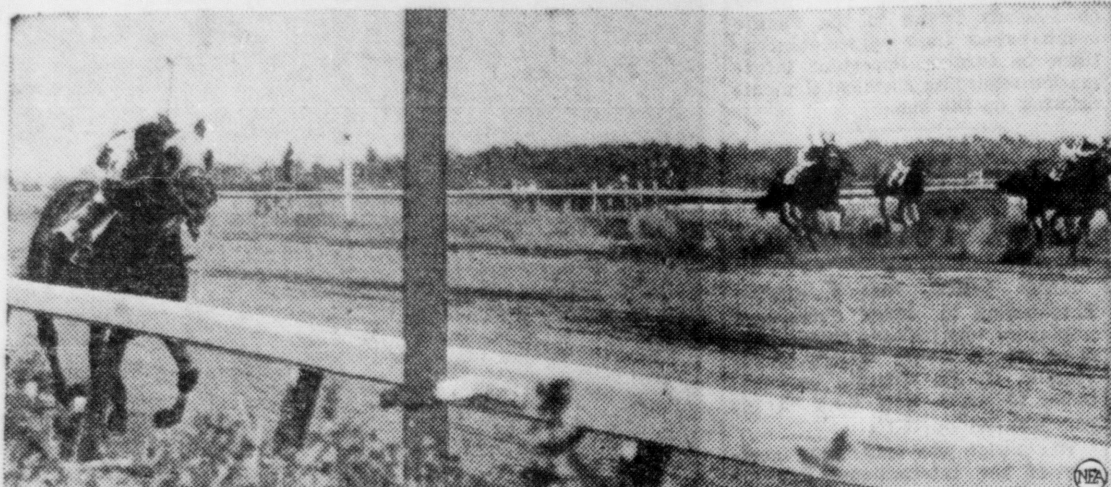

LOS ANGELES, June 7. — Two new world swimming records were claimed today by Adolph Kiefer, of Chicago, and Paul Wolfe of Los Angeles on performances in the pentathlon event which closed the open events in the National Aquatic Show yesterday.

Kiefer made a mark of one minute, 39.9 seconds in the 150-yard backstroke, two seconds better than the old mark. He was clocked for the distance after Wolfe had won the 100 yard race and Kiefer continued alone.

Wolfe's new mark was 1:49.3 for the 150 yard medley race, more than a full second better than the old mark of 1:51.2. Kiefer was racing under the colors of the Lakeshore Athletic club and Wolfe for Los Angeles Athletic club. Wolfe won the Pentathlon title with 61-2 points and Kiefer was second.

Katherine Kavis, Miami Beach, Fla. girl star and holder of a string of records, won the women's pentathlon with a sweep of every event.

SHE WANTED TO BE ALONE

This 2-year-old maiden, Battle Call, on the extreme left, got mad at the rest of the girls and refused to run with them as she raced along the outside rail to victory in the third race at Belmont Park. The girl friends she snubbed are over at the extreme right on the inside rail.

Hubbell's Screwball Screw Accident

Ball Slipped Out Of His Hand And He Risked Career to Capitalize Delivery

BY HARRY GRAYSON (Sports Editor, NEA Service)

NEW YORK.—Carl Hubbell, who added up the greatest string of consecutive victories in baseball history—24—stumbled into his famous screwball by accident.

Hubbell, the Giant who can't be beat, was a curve and fast ball pitcher until he lost control of a ball that slipped off his forefinger while he was southpawing for the Oklahoma City club of the Western league in 1924.

"The ball, moving a bit in the palm, shot off the second finger, took a peculiar drop approaching the plate, and the batter missed it a foot," explains the gentlemanly Hubbell.

"I experimented with it for the remainder of the game. "I noted that it became a semi-slow ball that dropped away from right-hand batters and curved in on left-handers.

"The batters seemed to have difficulty in hitting it solidly. "They wracked my fast one and wide curve high and far, so I learned by my own experience that the best thing I had was the screwball."

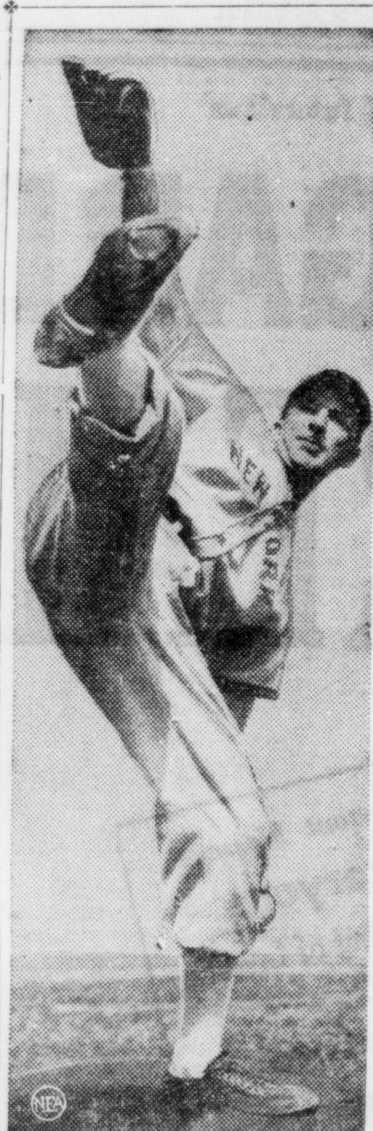

Hubbell continued to employ the screwball against the advice of such famous baseball men as Ty Cobb and George Moriarty.

Cobb and Moriarty, Detroit managers, feared that it would ruin the (then) youngster's arm and talked Hubbell out of using it for a time and to such an extent that he twice was returned to the minors.

Shipped to the Tigers' Beaumont, Texas league, farm in the spring of 1928, Hubbell sat in his room the first night and took stock of himself.

He had explained to Moriarty that he believed he could deliver if permitted to go back to the screwball, but the former third baseman and current American league umpire advised against it.

"I decided that if I didn't throw the screwball I'd be nothing more than an ordinary minor league pitcher," says Bill Terry's meal ticket. "I made up my mind either to get somewhere or ruin my arm and finish my baseball career.

"I spent the remainder of spring training with Beaumont specializing on that one delivery.

"I wanted to perfect it—to gain control of it. "I used it whenever I got into trouble. "It came through for me all where they will compete in the four-mile varsity and three-mile freshmen races.

Beaten decisively by Washington crews earlier in the season, the Californians did not waste more than an outside chance to beat the Northwest crew. Navy also may show the way to the Golden Bear varsity.

Ebright named the following varsity crew for the trip: Strokes, Larry Arpin, 7; Pete Porterfield; 6, Rollin Moore; 5, Dave Devarona; 4, Emil Bergh; 3, Jim Schaefer; 2, Gwynne Sharrar; bow, Steve Frost; Coxswain Harry Kenny; alternates, Kirk Smith and Curt Rocca.

The principal change in the boat- ing from the crew which raced Washington in April was at the No. 4 seat, where Bergh replaced Rocca. Then they travel to Poughkeepsie.

UNTIL WE MEET AGAIN

Smiling, pleasant, and looking not at all like they will at Comiskey Park, June 22, James J. Braddock, left, and Joe Louis exchanged greetings at Chicago's civic reception for a European amateur boxing team upon its arrival for matches with the Chicago Golden Gloves squad.

MISS TRAUNG LOSES ABROAD IN 1ST ROUND

TURNBERRY, Ayrshire, Scotland, June 7.—Dorothy Traung of San Francisco, America's principal threat to win the British Women's golf title, was eliminated in the first round today by Miss W. M. Berry, 2 and 1.

Betty Buechner, Glen Cove, L. I., advanced to the second round with a spectacular victory over Miss Betty Frost, South Africa, 1 up in 21 holes. Pam Barton, 22-year-old holder of both the British and United States women's title, breezed through her first round match with a 9 and 7 triumph over Mrs. W. Galbraith of Scotland.

Barbara Thompson, Santa Cruz, Cal., won from Mrs. I. Langford, 4 and 2.

BIRMINGHAM, Mich., June 7.—Stas of the golfing world ventured out across the treacherous Oakland Hill Country Club course today to tune up for the sport's greatest attraction, the National Open, which opens here Thursday for three days.

The course was closed to all but the 170 professional and amateur contenders.

In the delegation of pros testing the reconditioned Oakland Hills layout today were 16 veterans who competed in the Inverness four-ball matches at Toledo. Heading them were Harry Cooper of Chicago and Horton Smith, two crack shots who took top money in the Inverness.

Others in the entourage were Tommy Armour and Jimmy Thomson, second money winners; Sam Snead, Ralph Guldahl, Paul Runyan, Ky Laffoon, Henry Picard, Johnny Revolta, Denny Shute, Ray Mangrum, Lawson Little, Jimmy Hines, Olin Dutra and Gene Sarazen.

The course, longest ever used for the National Open, has been given a stretching and a face-lifting since the same tournament was staged here in 1924.

Tee shots are blind on six holes, fairways are narrow and roughs are deep and full of trouble.

A field of 143 professionals and 27 amateurs will begin their 72-hole medal grind in quest of the title held by Tony Manero at 8:15 a. m. Thursday.

The schedule calls for 18 holes Thursday, another 18 Friday and 36-hole final Saturday.

COOPER AND SMITH WIN AT BEST-BALL

TOLEDO, June 7.—"Lighthouse Harry" Cooper and Horton Smith today held the 1937 Inverness best-ball golf championship and its accompanying $1000 first prize money.

The veteran team finished in front among 16 of the nation's top "name" professionals, who ended four days of play at the third annual meet on the Inverness club links yesterday.

The new champions saw the chances of Tommy Armour and Jimmy Thomson to tie them fade on the 18th green in the last round, when Armour's 20-foot putt slipped past the cup.

Armour and Thomson had needed a win on the hole to tie Cooper and Smith with seven points. They got only a half-point and finished with a two-up victory over Denny Shute and Lawson Little.

Under the Inverness system of scoring, with holes won counted as plus and holes lost as minus, the final standings were: Cooper-Smith, plus seven; Armour-Thom-

Son, plus six; Paul Runyan and Ky Laffoon, plus one; Henry Picard and Johnny Revolta, even; Denny Shute and Lawson Little, minus four; May Mangrum and Johnny Hines, minus six; Olin Dutra and Gene Sarazen, minus seven. Cooper and Smith traveled the 128 holes in 459 strokes.

Semi-finals of the European zone Davis Cup play proceeded today with Czechoslovakia meeting Yugoslavia in the lower bracket and with Belgium tangling with the winner of the Italo-German series in the upper.

Germany led Italy 2-1, having won a singles match Saturday and the doubles Sunday, and is a heavy favorite to advance into the round of four with a victory in one of today's final singles encounters. Baron Gottfried von Cramm will play Italy's No. 1 singles player, Giorgio de Stefani, who vanquished young Henner Henkel in his opening contest. Henkel meets Vanni Canepale of Italy in the opening singles match of today's play, 3-6, 6-3, 6-1, 6-4.

The Czech team won all of their singles matches to eliminate France 4-1, the same procedure of the Yugoslavians in disposing of South Africa. Belgium's margin over Sweden was only 3-2, winning the doubles and splitting the four singles matches.

DEAD HORSE JUMPS

Clockers at Belmont Park, N. Y., swear that J. E. Widener's Bush-ranger, which died during a steeplechase workout, was not killed in a spill but was already dead when he took the last jump. "Momentum carried him over," they say. "He didn't look right when he came out on the field for his workout. After he had barely lifted himself over four jumps on sheer courage, he seemed to 'spread out' as dead horses do. At the fifth jump he was dead—dead as he went over the fence and dead before he ever hit the ground."

Pilots Challenger

Captain G. H. Williams, skipper of Endeavour II, smiles confidently as he stands at the helm of the T. O. M. Sopwith's sturdy yacht at the Herreshoff shipyards, Bristol, R. I., where the British craft is being made ready for the America's cup races this summer at Newport.

CARPENTERS TO MEET BANKERS

Struggling to stay in the Santa Ana City league's first-half pennant race, the Carpenters and Commercial National bank teams hook up in tonight's 8:30 feature at the Municipal Bowl.

In view of their recent 6-1 win over the Grand Central Market in which Mel Toiler showed better-than-average City league slinging, the Carpenters rate as a slight favorite. However, the Bankers (on paper) shape up as one of the best teams in the city and with Roy Stout and Mearl Youel as a pitching staff need very few runs to win.

Elks and South Methodists collide in the 7:30 preliminary. The Antlered Herd figures to get back in winning stride after dropping out of first place when outgassed by the Grand Central Market last week.

Standings:
SANTA ANA CITY LEAGUE
Montgomery Ward W. L. Pct.
Santa Ana Elks 4 2 .667
Carpenters' Union 3 2 .600
Grand Central Market 3 3 .500
Commercial Nat'l Bank 2 3 .400

ELKS LOSE IN NINTH AT SAN DIEGO

Pushing around two runs in the last of the ninth, the Consolidated Aircraft corporation nine turned back Santa Ana's Elks, 6-5, in San Diego Saturday night. The City leaguers found the 12-inch ball and 60-foot baselines quite a puzzle but even so had a 5-4 lead before errors beat them in the last round. Darwin Scott got three hits for the Elks. The score:

Santa Ana Elks 5 7 5
Consolidated Aircraft 6 10 4
Batteries: Elks—Raper and Levens; Consolidated Aircraft—Seacord and Olson.

MAT OFFICIALS EXPECT RECORD THROWN OF 2000

TONIGHT'S CARD
Vincent Lopez vs. Hans Steinke, two out of three falls, one hour time limit.
Walter Underhill vs. Leo Numa, one fall, 45 minute time limit.
"Tarzan" Zim vs. "Red" Vagnonne, one fall, 30 minute time limit.
Bobby Coleman vs. "Little Caesar" Grubbs, one fall, 30 minute time limit.

The idol of Mexican wrestling fans—Senior Vincent Lopez—former world heavyweight champion and Hans Steinke, German Goliath, settle their personal feud tonight at the Orange County Athletic club.

Meeting in a three-fall rematch following a sensational struggle here last April 26, Steinke and Lopez are expected to take up where they left off when Steinke was disqualified for bouncing both Lopez and the referee around in press row. Steinke went completely berserk for several minutes as he manhandled Lopez and Referee Joe Varza. The fans stood cheering and booing in emotional frenzy.

Bad blood is said to exist between the two and only recently Lopez claimed Steinke gave him the worst of it when he was appointed referee of the world championship match between Lopez and Dean Detton.

Tonight's rematch is expected to attract upwards of 2000 mat followers of this section, with no less than half being Mexican followers of the former champion.

Probably the strongest and most attractive supporting card arranged in months also is on tap. Matchmaker Tiger Clinton is sending Leo Numa, the "Lion Man," the most perfect built wrestler in this section, out to tame "Cyclone" Walter Underhill in the secondary feature while "Red" Vagnonne, Italian speed merchant who burned up the mat his first appearance here two weeks ago, tangles with "Tarzan" Zim.

The PAYOFF

BY RICHARD McCANN
(NEA Service Sports Writer)

Baseball is as uncertain as the weather, as changeable as the lithe woman's mind.

The other day Bill Dietrich, a journeyman pitcher with the Chicago White Sox, worked against the Cleveland Indians and was shelled for nine hits, including three home runs (one with the bases full), before he was rescued after three-and-a-third innings.

Three days later the same Mr. Dietrich, using the same arm and the same regulation baseball, and hurling the same regulation distance, pitched a no-hit, no-run game against the St. Louis Browns.

A no-hit, no-run game, as you of course know, is a pitcher's most prized achievement. In all the long history of baseball only 57 others have been pitched—his was the 34th in the American league.

But, although this gets him a room and bath, southern exposure, in the Hall of Fame, it does not give him, by any means, a steady job. And, like as not, you'll be finding Mr. Dietrich in the breadlines, so to speak, instead of the headlines soon again.

Like Dietrich, Bobby Burke, an er-hired no-hitter, Eddie Plank, the old master of Philadelphia, toiled 15 years in the major leagues without doing any better than a one-hitter.

Late in his career, slaving on the hill for the Browns, Mr. Plank hobbled up to the threshold of the Hall of Fame in a game against Washington. He had two men out in the ninth inning with Eddie Foster, the Washington third-baseman, coming to bat.

Foster turned to Clark Griffith, the Washington manager, and said:

"I'm going to try to hit—but I'm going to use a fungo bat."

Foster, not wanting to spoil the mater's no-hitter, hoped to hoist a soft fly. He did—just out of the first baseman's reach for a single.

Took Johnson 20 Years

Walter Johnson waited nine on- to 20 years before he was able to pitch a no-hitter. It was against Boston on July 1, 1920. The rest of that year he was plagued with his first and only sore arm.

The Big Train chugged past the Hall of Fame on numerous other occasions. Harry Hooper, the old

ROY HAHNE OF ORANGE LEADS NIGHT HITTERS

Roy Hahne of Orange, a chap who batted an inconspicuous .278 for Olive last season, is out in front of all the National Night Ball league hitters after one-quarter of play.

Moved from first base into the outfield on joining the Cubs, Hahne found his eye immediately and has been blasting all kinds of pitching. His current average is .320, based on 13 hits out of 25 times to the plate.

Floyd Montgomery of Anaheim, although participating in only three games of the first seven, is batting an even .500. Always near the top, Tom Denney of Santa Ana ended the round with .485. Al Rebohn, the league's champion in '35, is right up there with .464.

Huntington Beach compiled the best team average, followed by Santa Ana and Colton.

Perehing (Pus) Hodgson, one of the numerous employees of the Cardinal baseball chain, is now with Cedar Rapids but has yet to see action....Douglas Preston Wheeler is batting .333 for Mayoden of the Bi-State league....Del Jones hasn't written since leaving Placencia for Fargo, N. D....His brother, Bill, is to follow him to the Northern league in a few weeks. Wee-Willie will play for Superior and for a century note a month....

Six baseball scouts, all purportedly representing major league clubs, were in the Fullerton grandstand yesterday to watch "Bus" DeVolter, sensational Bowling Green, Ohio, southpaw, in action. Although the stocky young fellow pitched Fullerton jaycee to a Southern California title, he failed to impress the scouts....Lawrence Jerome Robeson Jr., the jaycee captain, however, made a mark.... "I was instructed to watch this southpaw pitcher," one scout is quoted as saying, "but all I saw was that half-pint shortstop."

"Bud" Kavanagh, the Anaheim high school catcher, is to lead a group of Colonists to Fullerton jaycee next fall....All because the Hornets have a championship team, too....Ray Ortiz Jr., the husky Anaheim Mexican gunner, who was promised a trip to Japan this summer, is afraid plans will not materialize....Ray is disappointed because he doesn't want to work....The submarine gunner may play night ball in Hollywood.

Fullerton swimmers will not suspend activities this summer, but will continue their aquatic activities as the Fullerton Swimming club as the Fullerton Tribune is running a box "What Vaughan Did"....Some folks wonder why it isn't slugged, "What Vaughan Didn't" when Vaughan don't...."Arky" has increased his batting average from .123 to .380 and seems to be after the National league batting championship so he can talk figures when it comes time to sign the documents again this next winter.

60 HORSES DIE IN OMAHA FIRE

OMAHA, June 7.—What was called the worst tragedy in the history of the American turf failed to stop the Ak-Sar-Ben running race meeting today.

Fire swept the main barn at the track Sunday, killing two men and more than 60 horses.

The dead were W. T. Lochlear, trainer for Reynolds Brothers' stable, and Ed Kelly, a trainer of Lincoln, Neb.

Several other persons were treated for burns suffered when they attempted to save the horses from the flames.

Among the horses burned to death were 33 racers and 24 valuable horse show animals. The loss was estimated at more than $200,000.

The fire started near the center of the big stable as a polo team from Paulina, Ia., was preparing to play a match against an Omaha team. The Iowa team saved all but two of its mounts.

A few minutes later hay and straw in the barns caught fire. Telephone lines were burned before the fire department could be notified.

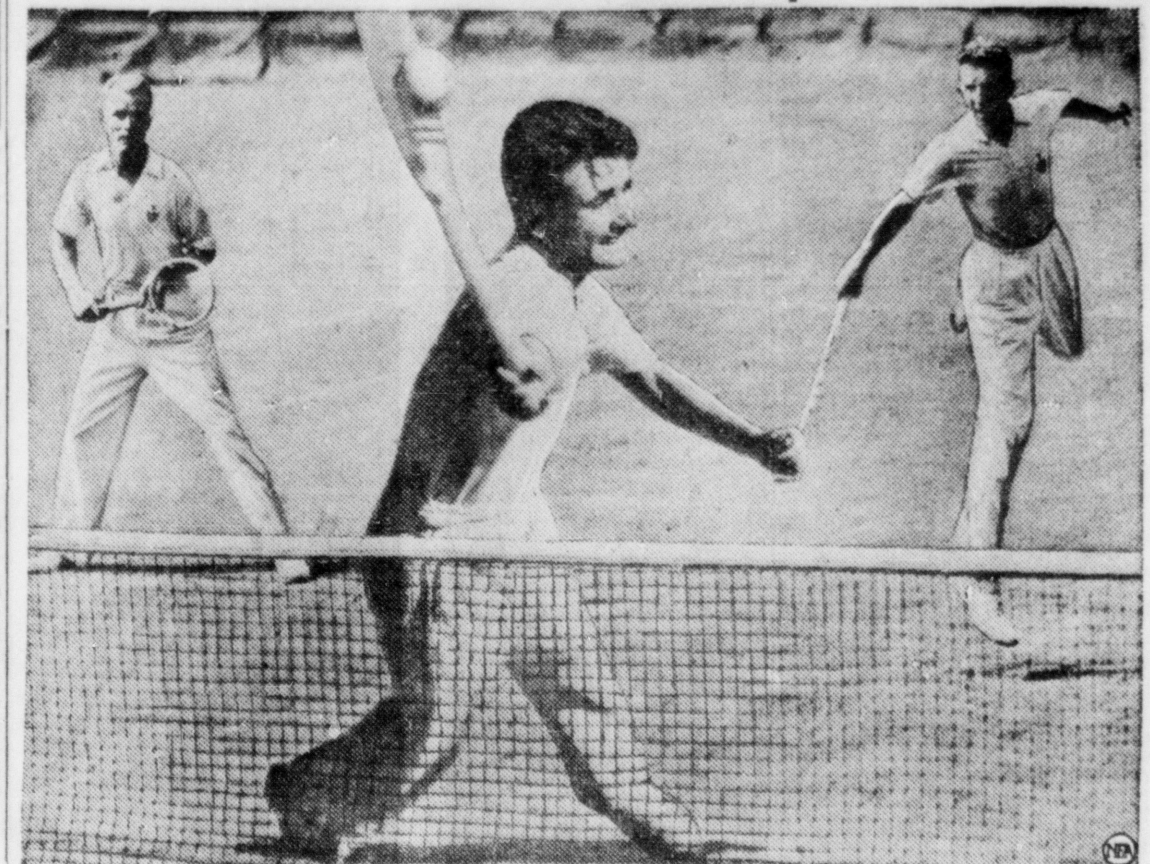

LAGUNA BEACH, June 7.—An acute housing shortage in Laguna Beach, resulting in skyrocketing of rentals, is due to be relieved with the completion, during the next few weeks, of considerable apartment-house building, first units of which will be ready for occupancy during the coming week.

At Coast Boulevard South, near Brooks street, a twelve-apartment house is finished, and in process of finishing. Another building, to contain 28 apartments, will be rushed to completion on Broadway, opposite Tent City, by Taylor Brothers, contractors for the owner, Mr. J. W. Mandigo, of Beverly Hills.

Further development of Broadway, hitherto dormant under outstanding Mattson bonds recently cancelled, is looked for. On North Coast Boulevard, Cliff Drive, and side streets both north and south of Broadway, additional apartment, duplex and individual construction is underway; these units, with others in process of planning and building, are expected to provide accommodations for nearly 150 families, thus relieving a situation which promised at one time to work hardship upon permanent residents of Laguna Beach.

With the coming of fall, and the consequent exodus of the temporary visitors, many vacancies will be present; and, as the result, it is expected that many old, board-battered, shack structures, especially in the downtown district, will be razed or modernized, in order to meet the competition of the new buildings now completed and to be erected. With the providing of sufficient accommodation, rent-raising is expected to subside. Many complaints have been registered by year-round residents, who have been given short shift, or no shift at all, in numerous instances being given no opportunity to meet suddenly-increased rentals, and facing three-day or thirty-day summary notices to vacate.

Grant Gives U. S. Net Team Inspirational Force

Gene Mako Betsy Grant Don Budge

Wetherell, Easy Winner Of Trial, Opens Net Tour Wed.

Lewis Wetherell had qualified today to defend his National Public Parks tennis championship at Pittsburgh this summer.

The Santa Ana youth, scheduled to leave Wednesday for a summer's campaign in the east, with a U.S.C. squad, went through the motions of qualifying here yesterday by winning the Orange County district finals from Bob Blakemore, 6-1, 6-1.

Jack McManus, Fullerton, expected to give Wetherell something of a workout, defaulted in the first round.

By winning here, Wetherell automatically enters the tourney at Pittsburgh, but other district champions must "play through" the Pacific Coast eliminations at Long Beach June 30-July 4. They are:

Doubles—Robert Blakemore and Fred Wiemer, who defeated Kenneth Ranney and Toby White, 8-6, 6-2;

Mixed doubles—Mildred Ward and Toby White, who won from Walter and Marjorie Blair, 6-4, 7-5;

Women's doubles—Mildred Ward and Marjorie Lauderbach and Marjorie Lauderbach Blair, who are defending coast champions in the Public Parks tournament;

Women's singles—Marjorie Lauderbach Blair, who reached the semi-finals at St. Louis last summer.

Winning their first game against the Philadelphia Phillies, 7-2, St. Louis Cardinals were awarded a 9-0 forfeit in the nightcap when Empire "Ziggy" Sears decided that Jimmy Wilson's pitchers were stalling to keep the game from going into regulation limit before the Philadelphia "curfew" rang. The Cards held an 8-2 lead with two men on in the fifth when Sears stopped the alleged dilatory tactics.

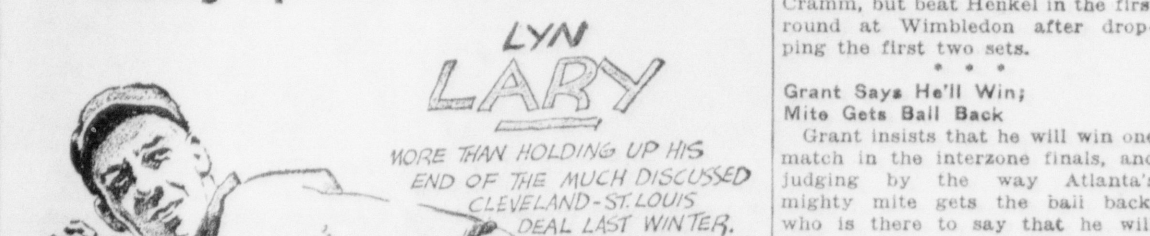

The Giants dislodged the Pittsburgh Pirates yesterday after the Bucs had held sway for more than a month, but the Yankees found their throne tottering after losing three out of their last four games.

Besides New York and Pittsburgh the National league fight involves the Chicago Cubs who are virtually tied with the Pirates, having won two more games and lost two more, and the St. Louis Cardinals, two-and-a-half games behind the Cubs.

The Chicago White Sox is the surprise team of the American circuit. They have eight straight victories under their belt and are virtually tied with Cleveland for second place.

The Giants handed the Pirates their fourth straight defeat yesterday, 9-5. Hal Schumacher turning the Pirates back with eight hits while his mates collected 13 off Blanton, Weaver and Hoyt. The Cubs held their steady gall by dividing a twin bill with the Boston Bees. Falling 7-1 in the opener, Chicago came back to take the nightcap, 7-2.

Grant Says He'll Win; Mito Gets Ball Back

Grant insists that he will win one match in the interzone finals, and judging by the way Atlanta's mighty mite gets the ball back, who is there to say that he will not?

Budge has it in him to cop two matches, and the doubles team of Budge and Mako is just about the finest in the world today.

As far back as two or three years ago, Bill Tilden called von Cramm the most formidable amateur in the universe.

But von Cramm can win only two singles matches at the most. He requires assistance, and Henkel, though playing briskly these days, isn't quite finished enough for international play.

Both Budge and Grant seem capable of beating him on the face of their steady play against the Australians. And the German doubles team doesn't stand much chance against Budge and Mako, the mower-downers.

And don't be too positive that Budge won't repulse von Cramm. The Berkeley boy is at the peak of his game.

Budge appears to have "arrived," Mako has settled down, and the long neglected Betsy Grant gives the American team the inspirational force it has lacked since the Davis Cup took a boat ride.

America is the logical choice.

HORSE PROVES GREATNESS IN BELMONT RACE

BELMONT PARK, N. Y., June 7.—War Admiral, Samuel D. Riddle's triple-crown champion, cannot be raced for at least two months, Dr. Crawford, veterinarian, said here today.

The decision to keep the son of Man O' War inactive for that length of time was reached after thorough examination of the injured hoof the colt received at the start of the Belmont Stakes Saturday.

By HENRY McLEMORE (United Press Staff Correspondent) NEW YORK, June 7.—Until last Saturday the animal known as the horse held a very low position in my book of "likes."

He was way down on the list in a spot somewhere between the carrier pigeon and the yak, because I had never considered him pretty or smart, and he was always costing me money.

But no more. Today the horse was smack on top, boosted there by that four-footed little cuss, War Admiral. In 2 minutes and 28 and 5-5 seconds he showed me more class, more gameness, than I have seen in 10 years of watching sports.

That was the time it took him to cover the mile-and-half journey of the $50,000 Belmont Stakes, and those of us who saw him do it, never will forget it.

Everything Against Him

Everything was against his winning. To start with, he already had won the Derby and the Preakness, and the books will show you that when a horse takes those two, he usually comes up to the Belmont worn to a frazzle and ready for a licking. The Admiral was the fourth horse to do it, though many have tried.

In the grab-bag draw for post positions the stream-lined little son of Man O' War drew the slot on the far outside—the worst in the bunch. He had broken from the rail in the Derby and the Preakness, and shown a decided liking for inside going. The outside wall was new to him.

In addition, he was the target for every other horse and jockey in the race. They knew he was the one to lick and they had laid their plans accordingly. Furthermore, he got a bad break at the start. His chunky little body was no more than half way in the gate when the "Off" bell buzzed and the field broke loose.

Injures Himself

The Admiral is a hot article when he gets the signal to move. He shoots it all in a drive from the start. It was in this desperate, late lunge from the line that he suffered an injury that would have stopped a horse of less courage. His right hind leg stabbed his right front leg, slicing to the front shell of the hoof.

But he never faltered. He was driving for the front of the pack, and nothing could stop him. With blood streaming from the injury he tore on, and when the field pounded into the first turn there was the little fellow, the Riddle silks flashing in the sun, a-winger-on out front by a length.

All through the backstretch six of the best three-year-olds in the country took shots at him: Pompano, Scenic View, Brooklyn, Vanocoe, Secretariat and Flying Scot. They never made a dent in the daylight that separated them from Man O' War's hustling son. In fact, he met every challenge with a fresh drive of his own, and every drive moved him further and further out in front. The boys were playing follow the leader again, with no hopes of ever catching up.

Everybody Cheers

When the Admiral hit the top of the stretch, running like sin, I don't believe there was a customer in the place that wasn't up on his feet yelling him home. He made you forget your bets on the other horses. He was a champion, going to town, and there was nothing to do but whoop him along.

Thunder shook the stands when his time went up in the red lights of the infield board: 2:28 3-5. That's gunning. It shaded his immortal pappy's track record by a fifth-of-a-second, and equaled the American record for the distance set by one Handy Mandy in 1926. Man O' War had only 118 pounds up. Handy Mandy carried but a feather of 109. The Admiral toted 126, a full man's size chunk, and was breezing at the end. Yes, breeding. Charley Kortsinger was looking back when the Admiral crossed the line, nodding to a friend in the stands.

Someday that little hoss is going to go all out—and when he does he'll quit talking about Man O' War.

earnest young man who throws with his left arm rose to the heights on sultry August day in Washington in 1931 and held the Boston Red Sox hitless.

Mr. Burke was promptly admitted to the Hall of Fame but almost just as soon he was readmitted to the bullpen when he spent most of his remaining days in the American league. You see, in his next start four days later he was almost decapitated by the whistling line drives ruffed at him.

Case of Robertson

And then there was the case of Mr. Charley Robertson, another White Sox pitcher, who scurried across the baseball stage 15 years ago, pausing long enough to fling himself one of those rarest of the rare—a perfect game.

Mr. Robertson pitched a no-hit, no-run, no-misdeed-first game—one of the six such masterpieces since a scrawny young chap named Abner Doubleday yelled, "Hey, catch this..." He hung on about two years and then slipped down into oblivion. And if you don't think it's oblivion let me where Mr. Robertson is today—that is, where he is outside of Page 87, column 1 of the record book?

On the other hand many of baseball's greatest pitchers have never

Red Socker and White Socker, was his nemesis. Once Harry hit the first ball pitched over the fence and Walter didn't give up a safety after that. About 12 years later Mr. Johnson was pitching against the White Sox and Mr. Hooper, who had changed his habits and spoiled another no-hitter for Walter.

Perhaps that is why Walter did what he did in Detroit that day when Tommy Bridges was hurling a perfect game. You know there were two out and Walter's team was 13 runs behind and he sent up a pinch-hitter. Dave Harris, Harris elapped out a single, and spoiling Bridges' effort, and neither Johnson nor Harris were ever forgiven by the Detroit fans.

Nor did Bridges forget Harris... Dave faced Tommy about 15 times after that and struck out two-thirds of the time.

Incidentally, the game was one of those one-hitters Bridges pitched against the Nationals.

KEYSTONE STATE EXECUTIVE MEETS WIFE RETURNING FROM EUROPEAN CRUISE: George H. Earle, Pennsylvania Governor, an ardent New Dealer who is frequently referred to as a possible Democratic Presidential candidate in 1940, with Mrs. Earle on her arrival in New York.

SUMMER COSTUME WITH DETACHABLE LAPELS AND CUFFS: A suit of blue and white striped linen with white pique lapels and cuffs edged with blue linen. A blue silk scarf decorated with white motifs and a white straw beret complete the costume.

CHARGING DOWN THE BACKSTRETCH ON AN EASTERN TRACK: Flying Snow, with Peters up, leading the field in the Colwell Purse at Belmont Park, New York. The five-year-old mare, owned by Mrs. C. S. Bromley, beat Armagnac by a nose but was disqualified for crossing the field after the start.

CHICAGO'S "OUTDOOR GIRL": Miss Sally O'Brien, who was selected at a contest recently held at the Merchandise Mart as Chicago's typical summer girl of 1937. She will preside at the official opening of the city's beaches within the next few days.

CLEVELAND ROOKIE MAKING GOOD: Geoffrey Heath, 21-year-old right fielder of the Cleveland Indians, a native of Fort William, Ontario, whose consistent hitting has raised the Indians' 1937 pennant chances. He starred with the Zanesville, O., club which sent Tom Henrich to the Yankees.

A MODERN COLUMBUS: Liaut. Antonio M. Pelaez, of the Cuban Navy, who will command the fleet of three planes, named the Nina, Pinta, and Santa Maria, which will make a 20,647-mile good-will tour of Pan-America in celebration of the 445th anniversary of Columbus' discovery of the New World.

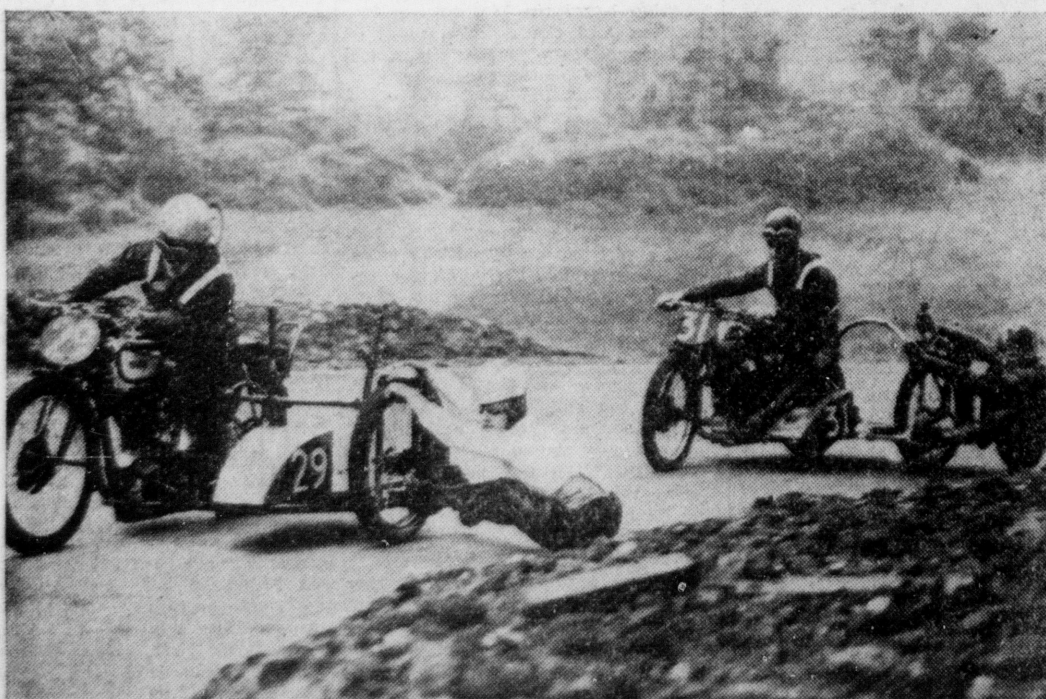

IT'S ALWAYS OPEN SEASON FOR THE PRACTICAL JOKER: Life to some people is just one practical joke after another and to cater to the demand, one New York establishment turns out over 10,000,000 surprises in innocent-looking containers. Above are three of today's "best sellers." Left: A "sparkling match" goes off in the face of an unsuspecting painter who asked for a "light." The camera was faster than his reaction. Center: The hollow rubber cigar which, when pressed, squirts water in the face of the obliging friend. At right, The Jack-in-the-box, which can be used to discourage unauthorized visits to the pantry. It consists of a jam jar, which, when opened, shoots out a writhing snake five feet long.

FOR ONCE SHE'S NOT SITTING ON THE PIANO: Helen Morgan, night club entertainer, returns to New York from appearances in London during the Coronation festivities, wearing a nautical costume of navy blue, a swanky cap and a long plaid scarf. The cane she is carrying is an Irish blackthorn.

ACROBATICS ON AN ENGLISH MOTORCYCLE TRACK: Rounding a curve on the new Crystal Palace road racing track in London, riders practicing for the Grand Prix Race, keep their machines on the ground with the assistance of their agile partners.

AT A PREMIERE IN HOLLYWOOD: Mary Pickford and her fiancé, Buddy Rogers, orchestra leader and screen actor, at the opening night of the play in which Lynn Fontanne and Alfred Lunt made their Hollywood stage debut before an audience composed for the greater part of film celebrities.

STARTING ON THE FINAL DASH: Entries in a whippet hurdle-race on a track in Melbourne, Australia, start down their respective taped lanes for a neck-and-neck dash for the finish post after clearing the last jump on the course.

Editor's Note: Like the Duke of Windsor, he cast aside mighty power for the sake of the woman he loved, and fled into exile; but when she died, General Georges Boulanger could not face his future without Marguerite de Bonnemains. Tragedy brings to a close the near-parade to the love story of the Duke of Windsor, told by Morris Gilbert in the fifth article on "Lovers in Exile."

By MORRIS GILBERT
NEA Service Staff Writer

Fifty thousand Parisians milled in the Place de la Madeleine yelling "Vive Boulanger!" and "Boulanger to the Elysee!", the "Elysee" being the French White House.

The crowd swarmed over the boulevards, up the broad steps of the church of the Madeleine, extended down the rue Royale to the Concorde, and into side streets, including the Fouborg St. Honore, almost to the Elysee Palace itself.

There were no soldiers, no gendarmes, none of the forces of order at hand. The police were absent, too, except for the famous, shrewd little chief of police of the epoch, Lepine, who grimly watched the manifestation and knew he could not control it.

"Boulangism," that January night of the year 1889, had paralyzed the government. The young and fragile Third Republic was on the verge of collapse. In the Elysee Palace itself, the President of France, Sadi Carnot, his bags packed, sat at the top of the kitchen stairs, ready to vanish at the first signal.

The minister of the interior, Floquet, fat man who had once fought a ridiculous duel with Boulanger and wounded the general, quite by chance, in the neck, whimpered in an armchair in his office. "Since they want him so much, those Parisians, let them have their General!" he gasped, in abject defeat. He began to burn his papers and pack his trunks.

DALLIED WITH BEAUTY
WHILE OPPORTUNITY FADED

Far down the boulevards, a hard-boiled politician and journalist named Georges Clemenceau loitered in the office of his paper "Justice." Clemenceau, his earlier patron,

He could have been dictator of France, but baffling General Georges Boulanger (left) preferred to heed the dictates of his heart and the blandishments of Mme Marguerite Bonnemains (right), beautiful invalid whose importunities led him to seek happiness in exile instead.

later enemy, was particularly interested, that evening, in the climate of the Noumea prison colony. Now that Boulanger was "in," he—Clemenceau—might be going there, he felt.

Boulanger had just won a local election in Paris by 244,000 votes to his opponent's 160,000. It was a smashing victory, and reflected the temper of France. The long campaign was won.

Somebody in Boulanger's victory party at the Cafe Durand said it was almost time to go. Almost time for the General to pick up his hat, mount his horse, and clatter around to the Elysee. Almost time, by riding a few hundred yards, through a delirious mob, to become dictator of France or to turn the nation into a monarchy or an empire again, as he chose.

Upstairs in a small salon, rose-colored lamps cast their tender light on a woman's white arms. Her blonde hair, disheveled, glimmered as she leaned across the table. She was pleading with the man who sat there, begging him to stay, not to leave her. The pathos of her sob was heightened by the telltale red stain which marked her handkerchief when she withdrew it from her lips. Mme. Marguerite de Bonnemains, mistress of the brave General Boulanger, was tuberculous.

Time passed. A young reporter, downstairs, looked at his watch and perceived that it was midnight. Outside the crowd was still roaring. But it seemed to him the noise was less boisterous, less eager, than earlier. The air out there must be cold and nipping, he thought. A January night in Paris—a drizzle in the air—all that was a little dampening to political ardor.

But it seemed to him the noise was less boisterous, less eager, than earlier. The air out there must be cold and nipping, he thought. A January night in Paris—a drizzle in the air—all that was a little dampening to political ardor.

Boulanger had missed his coup d'etat, on account of a lovely, adoring and pitiable lady. A few days later, he was an exile, in Brussels. The beautiful Mme. de Bonnemains was at his side.

Summer And Fall Events
On Schedule

Under the leadership of E. L. Couron, the Santa Ana Legion Drum and Bugle corps has started drilling for the state and national competition scheduled for the summer and fall.

Already rated as one of the leading drum corps of the state, the Santa Ana organization is out this year for both state and national honors.

"Adopted" in 1932

The corps will compete Aug. 8 in the state contest that marks the opening of the California convention at Stockton and will compete for national honors Sept. 15 in New York City, during the National convention of the American Legion.

Recognized as one of the leading organizations of its kind in the United States, the Santa Ana Legion drum corps was adopted in 1932 as the official drum corps of the famous Rainbow Division Society. In this capacity, it played in the Shrine Civic auditorium and the Philharmonic auditorium in addition to numerous other places where Legionnaires have gathered.

Valuable to City

Not only has the drum corps played at Legion affairs, but under the leadership of Couron, has been generous with its services for any civic or fraternal gathering. It also has been outstanding among drum corps playing at Legion conventions. In state and national competitions, the corps has consistently ranked among the leading organizations.

By its services at home and in other communities the Santa Ana Legion Drum corps has been a consistent source of publicity for the city and for that reason Couron is requesting the moral support of citizens of the community when the corps again competes for state and national honors.

Newspaper Guild
Opens Convention

ST. LOUIS, June 7.—(UP)—The fourth annual convention of the American Newspaper Guild, national union of editorial workers on newspapers in 40 states, opened here today. One hundred and fifty newspapermen and women attended.

Addresses of welcome by Thomas B. Sherman, president of the St. Louis guild; Joseph P. Clark, president of the St. Louis Central Trades and Labor union, and John Doherty, chairman of the C. I. O. joint council of St. Louis, featured the opening session.

Heywood Brown, president of the guild, said discussion of a report of the guild's international board, containing recommendations on matters of policy, probably would be deferred until tomorrow to enable completion of organization details. The report includes a proposal that the guild, now a part of the American Federation of Labor, affiliate with the Committee for Industrial Organization.

RADIO STOLEN

The erratic behavior of General Georges Boulanger, hero of the battle line, led to such caricatures as this, portraying him comically on his charger as "le brav' general."

a lovely lady could not face her lover's exposure to possible danger, and his bovine acquiescence in her selfishness, was all that saved the French Republic from overthrow that night. Such is the opinion of French historians.

But Boulanger, the hero of that tragic farce, had missed his chance before.

As the gallant leader on a curvetting black horse, he was the idol of Paris—not only the chambermaids' idol, but the aristocracy's.

The old Duchess d'Uzes contributed 3 million gold francs to his cause. The various pretenses—legitimist, Orleanist and Bonapartist—cultivated, admired, used him. For a few years, he was a national figure. For a few months, he was the hope of France.

France did not know then that he was the willing tool of monarchist reaction. Up to that January of 1889, France looked upon

The great Morris and Essex dog show was held the 29th of last month, at the New Jersey estate of Mrs. Dodge, of Dodge motor-car fame. This is the largest outdoor show in the world even the English admit that no show in England can compare with America's great classic. The show draws fifty thousand spectators yearly.

Annual Hoover School Picnic Attracts Many Guests

Always anticipated as one of the highlights of the year for Hoover P.T.A., students and their guests, the annual school picnic Friday night drew 190 participants to Irvine park. Faculty members were guests of honor at the affair, which had been planned by the P.T.A.

Mrs. John J. Vernon, association president, had delegated the general chairmanship of the affair to Mrs. C. F. Leithoff. Grade mothers assisting were Mesdames Edward Howard, Dean Smiley, Frank Latham, Horace J. Howard, Otto Schroeder, Walter Sorenson, Theron Willis and John Kinyon.

Following serving of supervised cooked-dish dinner, Mrs. Vernon took charge of a program presented at the pavilion. Guests introduced included faculty members, Miss Isabel Lindsay, principal; Mrs. Frances Hart, Mrs. John Green, Miss Maurie Hamill, Miss Doris Schenck; with Miss Anna Ekdhall, school nurse and Mrs. S. J. Mustol.

Mr. Mustol directed a student harmonica band in several selections with Charlotte Halseil accompanying. Harmonica players included Marilyn Mock, Betty Louise Vernon, Betty Ann Huffman, Joan Howard, Marilyn Hillyard, Donna Preble, Frances Howard, Virginia Ross, Dorothy Robbins, Walter Sorenson, Ruth Marie Lauderbach, Harold Sorenson, Catherine Mock, Patty Hunter, Elyse Crouse, Uretta Latham, Aveline Latham, Mary Ball, Joy Sharp and Eunice Fell-ham.

Miss Lindsay gave a short talk in appreciation of the work which the P.T.A. has done during the past year.

The Mixing Bowl

By ANN MEREDITH

So many women throw up their hands in holy horror when summer dinner parties are suggested, there must be a good reason for their attitude. Probably, the reason lies in their avoidance of hot kitchens or their hesitancy in submitting their guests to the discomfort of a stuffy dining room.

Permit me to change from the third to the first person and ask you what's wrong with your lovely garden or that wide shady porch, in place of the stuffy inside dining room?

The menu for a garden dinner might begin with a clever appetizer (see recipe) that is both appetizing and salad combined. The main course could be casserole of spring chickens, corn soufflé baked in paper cups, green peas cooked with a sprig of fresh mint, rolls, if you MUST serve bread, and a dessert everyone will enjoy, if it is frozen fresh strawberries, or a fresh raspberry sherbet served with iced coffee or black demi-tasse. The actual dinner preparation will keep you less than one hour in the kitchen.

A SUMMER APPETIZER

Canned artichoke hearts.

Russian caviar.

Pearl onions and lemon juice.

Fresh crab legs.

A spicy French dressing.

—contributed.

Drain the artichoke hearts, hollow each one slightly with a spoon and chill in a marinade of tart French dressing until serving time. To arrange the plates, well chilled, of course, put an artichoke heart in center of plate, put a spoonful of iced caviar seasoned with lemon juice and a few pearl onions (pickled) into the 'choke, and arrange the crab legs, wheel-spoke fashion, around the 'choke. Pour a small quantity of French dressing over the crab.

Send for the Safe and Sane reducing diet, today. Please enclose 1 stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request.

A Simple Method For Canning Strawberries or Raspberries

Syrup: 1 cup sugar to 11-4 cups water, boiled 10 minutes.

Firm ripe fruit.

Sterilized quart or pint jars.

Keep the syrup just under the simmering stage. Pick over the fruit, discarding all mushy pieces. Wash strawberries (never raspberries) and fill the jars taken from a boiling bath. Shake each jar lightly to pack the fruit a trifle; fill to the brim with syrup brought to a hard boil and the jars in a boiling bath (without covers) place a wide tin lid over jars, or a folded towel, and bring bath to a rapid boil. Process the fruit for 20 minutes, adjust covers, sealing the jars at once. Take from the bath, invert until cool, then test each cover before putting the fruit away.

Strawberries and red raspberries, done this way, retain their whole shape, color and fresh flavor.

German Pancake Plate for Luncheon or Sunday Breakfast

Small sausage cakes or tiny link sausages, fried, then well drained.

1 cup evaporated milk.

3 or 4 tablespoons sausage fat.

Salt and pepper.

Thin pancake batter.

—contributed.

Fry sausages and drain in a warm oven. Make up your favorite pancake batter and fry a quantity of cakes the size of a saucer. Roll each cake and arrange on a hot platter in even (about three cakes to a man-size serving). Pig the fried sausages in middle of platter, pour the evaporated milk into sputtering sausage fat, boil up and pour over cakes and sausages.

Tuesday: Strawberry shortcake. Picnic hot pot.

STORIES IN STAMPS

BY I. S. KLEIN
THE STRUGGLE OF YANG AND YIN.

FAR back in the history of Chinese civilization, the world was considered the battleground in the eternal struggle of the two major forces of life—male and female. It was not a conflict, but an effort to create a unity, a harmony, between these forces.

Symbolizing this struggle, the Chinese drew two symmetrically curved figures, one black, the other white, opposing each other within a circle. It is the "yin-yang" so well known and so universal in Oriental design. According to Chinese belief, every part of the world, both animate and inanimate, is ruled by the yin-yang, the opposition of male and female, light and darkness, active and passive.

Out of this symbol, other mystic forms have risen—the squared maze pattern around Oriental rugs, similar designs for borders, and the swastika.

Early Chinese stamps included this symbol in their border designs, and many stamps of Korea have featured the yin-yang. The symbol appears at the top of the stamp shown here.

CAST OF CHARACTERS
PATRICIA WARREN, heroine, secretary to Don Monterey, actor-playwright.
FRANK WARREN, Pats' cousin and roommate in New York.
DON MONTEREY, Patricia's actor-cousin.
ROSANOND AKERS, Patricia's rival.

Yesterday, Don identifies Pats as his wife at police headquarters, then drops her off at her hotel, still unaware she is really his wife!

CHAPTER XI
LEANING back in the cab, Pats gave herself up to a few moments of rapturous thought. Don loved her. He had proved it without a shadow of doubt. But she must not allow his mistaken gallantry to go on. Turning over plans in her mind she decided upon the simplest. Somehow she would slip into her room without being seen. Then minus the brown wig and glasses, she would calmly, perhaps not too calmly, walk in on Don and tell her story.

By means of the servants' elevator she stealthily gained the safety of her room. Quickly she crossed to the inner door and bent her head to listen. Evidently Don had lately come in. He was talking to Sims. He was going away for a few days. Sims should order a bite from the cafe and leave the door on the latch while he helped pack. He was to notify Don the minute Mrs. Monterey came in.

Pats threw her hat and coat on the bed. The sooner the better now. Deftly she used cream, powder, rouge and lipstick, ran a comb through her spun gold hair and pushed it into soft waves. The beating of her heart smothered her, cold shivers prickled her arms. The next few moments meant so much, the beginning or the end of happiness. All at once she became rigid, listening. Voices in the living-room. Oh, why hadn't she hurried? Must her intimate disclosures be made before the hostile eyes of the law? Then Don's voice, rough with irritation, broke above the murmur.

"Hello, Rosie," Pats relaxed. Rosie might not be welcome but—"The door was unlatched so we walked in," Rosie returned with an undertone of nervous tension. "Meet my lawyer, Mr. Bradovich."

INSTANTLY Pats scented trouble. Rosie with a lawyer. She leaned closer to the door. Every word came to her distinctly.

First Don, trying vainly to hide his impatience. "Very nice of you to stop but I'm in a deuce of a hurry. Another time perhaps," the prefect of police. "It's all right, gentlemen," the prefect said. "There is no danger. General Boulanger is at Havre with a lady."

Mme. de Bonnemains, daughter of the lesser nobility, loved him. In turn adored, and was lost in admiration. She was a selfish little thing, but she was Boulanger's career. What was much more important was her lover, in her arms.

His distraction proved irritating to his supporters. More than once they were obliged to hunt him up at her home at 39 Rue de Berli.

Smart police work got him out of France after the fiasco of the Place de la Madeleine. A police stool pigeon showed Boulanger a warrant for his arrest next morning. The warrant was a fake. Boulanger took the train that night, accommodating plainclothes men helping him on his way. The stool pigeon was awarded the Legion of Honor a few weeks later.

SWEETHEART'S DEATH HASTENED OWN TRAGEDY
Brussels was too close to Paris. At the request of the French government, Belgium asked Boulanger and Mme. de Bonnemains to move on. They went to London.

There they lived in semi-royal style, as a panderer will if he can. The Prince of Wales, later Edward VII, entertained him. He was feted. He received an offer to make a lecture tour in America. Mme. de Bonnemains, her illness worsening again, prevented him.

They presently returned to Brussels, for medical attention, and there Mme. de Bonnemains closed her lustrous eyes in death.

Two and a half months later, Boulanger decided to kill himself. He arranged his time and occupations those last days very carefully. One day he spent burning political papers. Another he passed framing two testaments, one political, one private. He wrote various forms, made out telegrams of notification, and finally printed this message:

"And on what grounds?" Don whirled around to face the attorney.

"I shall be most glad to specify," The man's smug tone infuriated Pats, listening behind the door. "In the first place Miss Akers left a lucrative position in Hollywood to come to New York at your suggestion."

At this remark something clicked in Pats' brain. The letter from Rosie—the one she had read during her first week in Don's employ—where was that letter? She had put it in the bottom desk drawer and forgotten it. Had it ever been destroyed? She was certain it had not.

"And, Mr. Bradovich was going on," "You kept her in this hotel, paid all her expenses."

"Wait a minute—I loaned her money at various times."

"I beg to differ with you, Mr. Monterey."

QUICKLY Pats pinned the wig over her curls and snapped the glasses on her nose. No time for sallow make-up now. Her dress was dark and plain. It would have to do. The occupants of the room started at her entrance.

"Patricia," Don said in a steely voice she hardly recognized, "you are just in time to witness a lowly attempt at shakedown."

"No such thing," Rosie threw in hotly. "You had me thrown out of—"

Don glared at her. "An outrageous frame-up," he grated. "Tell this fellow it's all a pack of lies. I got you a job—loaned you money—"

Rosie raised her chin and gracefully shrugged her graceful shoulders.

"It will be an ugly story, Mr. Monterey," put in the lawyer. "You can't hope to find a jury which will take your word against that of Miss Akers."

Don threw up his hands. "I have more important business tonight than haggling with you." Jerking open a desk drawer he snatched out a checkbook. "How much will you take to clear out?"

Mr. Bradovich rubbed his long bony chin with an equally long bony hand.

"Considering the circumstances I should say—twenty-five thousand."

Don roared. He cursed. But he took up his pen. "I haven't that much in the bank," he said wearily. "I'll give you a note."

"Don—" At the sound of Pats' voice Rosie and her attorney started and turned. They had not reckoned with the shadow against the wall. She took the pen from Don's hand. "Don't write a word. These people have no case against you."

Don looked up at her. "What do you mean?" he asked frowningly.

Pats turned to the lawyer. His leering smile stiffened.

Rosie said, "You keep out of this, Patricia." She was noticeably alarmed. But Pats didn't keep out of it.

"FIRST of all," Pats stated convincingly, "I happen to have a letter written by you, Rosie, while you were still in Hollywood, in which you called Don a beast, 'a mean old beast' were the exact words, because he had vetoed your suggestion that you come to New York. I think that takes care of charge number one. And Don did not pay your expenses while here except for the loans made in my presence."

The lawyer had turned a faint greenish color. He darted a furious glance at Pats. Instantly she tried to justify her position.

"I never wrote any such letter," she stormed. "Don begged me to come, he paid my hotel bills—"

"Oh, no he didn't," Pats insisted calmly. "I paid your outrageous bills as my cancelled check will prove. You were my guest, not Don's."

Don got to his feet. He moved toward the door. "And that will be about all," he said significantly. "This way out."

Mr. Bradovich, playing for big stakes, made a last stand.

"Main force won't get you anywhere, my man," he sneered. "Miss Akers' word is as good as yours and she swears your intentions—"

Don had flared to a white heat. Pats saw his fist shoot out and meet the chin of Rosie's lawyer.

It was a glancing blow as Bradovich, possibly profiting from past encounters, dodged. However it had enough force to topple him over backward. He bounced up like a rubber ball and made a rush for Don. They fought like wild men. Don furious with the injustice of it all, the lawyer raging over the miscarriage of his plans.

Two chairs crashed to the floor, a lamp followed them. There was the sound of blows, of strangled breathing, of muttered imprecations. Then Don swung hard and his opponent slithered to the floor. As Don sprang to follow his advantage, Pats screamed.

"Sims—Sims—" She had seen unquenchable hatred in her husband's eyes.

DRIVE CAREFULLY - SAVE A LIFE -

MANDATE AT ELECTION

To read Heywood Brown, one would think the vote last fall was upon whether or not we were to have an abundant life for everybody and that the administration was to disregard the Constitution and had the right to take from one group of people and give to another so that all could have an abundant life.

Everyone will agree that this could be done for a very short time but each succeeding year our people would be the worse for it. The people did not vote on the question of discarding the Constitution and having the majority rule eliminate our Bill of Rights.

LAGUNA INSTALLS METERS

In the face of strong opposition from merchants and residents alike, the Laguna Beach City Council, at its meeting Wednesday night, voted to install parking meters in the business district of that city.

The action of the council followed presentation of petitions from merchants and property owners protesting the installation. The council authorized the calling of bids for installation of the meters on Coast Boulevard between Legion and Broadway and on Ocean Avenue from the coast half way to Beach Street.

The action of the Laguna Beach city council probably will be studied with great care by the Santa Ana city trustees, who tonight will be faced with the same problem.

THE GOVERNMENT'S WHEAT PLANTING EXPERIENCE

It will be remembered that the government paid vast sums of money for reducing wheat acreage in 1935 and 1936. In face of these payments to reduce wheat, the wheat acreage in 1935 and 1936 was 5,000,000 acres more than for the previous year.

In 1936, still under the reduction program, the acreage was 7 per cent in excess of the area planted on an average during the five year period of 1928 to 1932, immediately preceding the restriction program.

These figures mean, of course, just one thing. Those not participating in the program increased their acreage more than the participants reduced their sowing. In other words, increases in less specialized wheat growing areas were greater than the reductions in the specialized wheat growing regions.

Government regulation of farm prices, in other words, cannot be voluntary. It must be compulsory to be effective. If it is compulsory, we lose our individuality. The best producers are limited as well as the poor producers and if this same plan works through all other lines of industry, automobiles, radios, gasoline, clothing and everything else, then of course all society suffers because business, in the final analysis is nothing but an exchange of things or services. Our living standards are not increased by limiting anything.

SOWING THE SEEDS OF REVOLUTION

The Register runs the only three nationally known columnists, we believe, advocating the principles of centralization of government, sometimes called the New Deal.

In this issue, we are reproducing an article out of the Financial World, written by John K. Barnes, who has devoted all his life making a study of economics and investments and who finds in history numerous parallels of development which we are now experiencing. It expresses very nearly what our reading of history and our interpretation of it will lead to in this country.

To our mind, centralization of power, elimination of the Supreme Court and elimination of the independence of the different commissions will create a bottle neck and greatly reduce production, and eventually what happened in ancient Egypt, Greece, Rome and the Moorish civilization of Spain is very likely to be repeated.

Those people who have never read history or never personally seen the remains of these civilizations believe largely what they wish and thus think there is no danger in centralizing power in the hands of the Federal Government.

The article is worth reading and should awaken every lover of liberty.

We are indebted to Mr. W. C. May for calling our attention to the article. It appears on page 9.

Modest doubt is call'd The beacon of the wise.—Shakespeare.

Better Jobs For All

—By R. C. HOILES

Maximum Hours

We can think of only two reasons for the proposed law of limiting the number of hours a man dare work for pay. One, to prevent a man from working so much as to hurt his health; the other, to share work.

We do not know which one of the advocates contend the law is needed to prevent. If it is to prevent a man from hurting his health by working too long, this, on the face of it, is absurd, because some people are able to work much longer than others without injuring their health. Then again, how can a man really tell how long he can work without hurting his health until he tries? Every man is different. Then again, a man should have the right to make mistakes. A man should have the right to grow up and use his judgment.

It is doubtful whether people can really claim that limiting the number of hours is for humanitarian purposes. If they do, it will work out about as well as the prohibition amendment which was intended to be humanitarian.

On the other hand, if the purpose of the law of limiting the hours of work is to make more jobs, this is absurd because as long as there are human wants, there is work to be done and our wants increase much more rapidly than our ability to satisfy them. To say that an individual dare work so many hours to produce something that he needs for himself and family, is simply ridiculous. It is the result of the thinking of those people with a "vacuum of experience" in producing.

The advocates of the law should explain the real needs of the law—whether it is to share work or protect the health of the workers.

Wonderful Wheat Crop

Six private estimates for the 1937 wheat crop, places it at 878 million bushels. This size crop has been exceeded only seven times in United States history.

Last year's crop was 626 million bushels, a quarter of a million bushels less than the estimate for 1937.

It is reported that all European producing countries have a shortage, indicating the United States will again be on a wheat exporting basis.

This large production, of course, means greater purchasing power and this consequently means better jobs for all in the United States.

An Old Rule

As we try to better the condition of the great mass of people by having made work by the government, which is of little value to society, we seem to forget that to meet the taxes which are used to make payrolls for made work, some PERSON or business must economize somewhere to pay these taxes; or they must add it to the cost of what they sell, which they invariably do, and consequently the consumer can buy that much less. This reduced consumption, because of high government taxes, is what in reality is being taken from private workers to supply the food, shelter and indulgences bought by those receiving the tax money from the government.

Taxes are already so high that they have greatly retarded production, decreased the amount of private jobs available and lowered the real wages of all the workers.

What Other Editors Say:

ANOTHER MARKUP

Chicago Daily News

Scarcely any doubt remains that President Roosevelt will ask Congress to set up a system of legally fixed wage and hour standards in industry. Mr. Roosevelt has let no grass grow under his feet since the decision of the Supreme Court in the Wagner Act case apparently widened the scope of Federal powers over industry and trade by extending the meaning of the inter-state commerce clause of the constitution.

Supposing that the President's motives are entirely noble, that he gets a law written exactly as he wishes, that money wages are increased over a wide area of industry, and that hours are shortened, what would be the probable effect upon that recurrent rendezvous of the workingman's pay check with the grocery bill, which is the most important economic transaction in our civilization?

If the actual production of groceries does not increase in proportion to the size of the Arabic numerals written on the weekly pay check, the grocery bill will go up, and cancel the gain in wages. The effect of the President's plan will be bigger numerals on the pay check, and that is all.

If the President's plan so increases the buying power of a great number of consumers that production is greatly stimulated, and prices fall because the supply runs ahead of the demand, the pay check might speak with greater authority to the grocer. That would be fine. It would help every business in the United States. We heartily wish that we could believe that such results are possible. But we have no confidence in the ability of any government to increase production by such means, or by any other device of law or fiat. On the contrary, the mere marking up of wages has an immediate tendency to small producers out of business, as happened under NRA. The result is that there are likely to be fewer groceries to attend the rendezvous of the pay check and the grocery bill.

We had a taste of that under NRA, and we will probably get another should the President's wage-fixing plan become law.

We have no more confidence in the ability of a government to increase real earnings by marking up wages than we have in the ability of Wall Street to increase the real value of the country by marking up the capital value of corporations. In essence, the hiking of wages by law or other political process is the same thing that a corporation does when it hikes the nominal and speculative value of its stocks and bonds by capitalizing its earning power. Both are just paper transactions, that have never yet registered permanently in a real increase of either wealth or wages.

'And What Is So Rare As A Day In June? Then, If Ever, Come Perfect Days'

In half and saving one of the halves for next time. I suppose our president now would take a bite and throw the rest of the apple out the window. How times do change—I must be getting old and garrulous, and beset with old fashioned ideas.

I presume that Mr. Walker started out in life better equipped in mental ability than most of us and I do not think it was ever in his plan to shun the acquisition of the filthy lucre. I sincerely hope he has accumulated enough for his old age.

Now he complained that I evaded his questions and arguments—I wonder if Mr. Walker has not evaded and used only the things he considered appealing to a certain type of prejudice. He cited a long list of unfortunate men and women who starved or took their lives; I will grant that many of these things happened just as they do now, and will continue to do. There never was a time in those days that these same people could not have received aid, and you know this Mr. Walker, yet you use that kind of an argument; at present there are some 30,000 on charity in Los Angeles.

You seem greatly concerned and have harped on the days of depression, if you are the man of intelligence which you claim to be, and I think you are, you have other theories than the inequities of Mr. Hoover and the party (I might say not in power at that time. And then you talk of "flippancy" of argument. You have put yourself to great concern as to my occupation and whether I am a registered voter,—perhaps I should be denied the use of the Clearing House column. It would be well if you concerned yourself as to the status of Bridges and of his fellow patriots, that are being pampered by the system you are defending; what have you to say about the great army of leeches fastened to our public institutions, from Washington on down to our cities and hamlets, so powerful in their organized strangle hold on the tax payers, that they can control the policy of any community,—what have you to say about the new boards and commissions created from day to day, demanding and getting salaries all out of proportion to their service.

Mr. Walker, I am not frightened as to my future, nor am I fighting from a purely personal reason, the so-called wealth whether large or small is a very unstable thing, and without brains to direct it, it can accomplish little. There are buildings in our cities representing millions of investment that could be destroyed by a few rounds of artillery fire, or the unleashed passion of a wild mob. Can you think of any argument against economy and reason in government expense, but that those advocating the same, are against the poor and unfortunate? Or that those who disagree with the present labor tactics are against the working man? What proof have you that the objections to a certain type of WPA work where nine men stand around and watch one or two do the work, (I am not blaming these men). I am blaming a cockeyed system and ask you where will it take us? And who is fostering this system? I know you will fall back on your old stereotyped phrases—"Pillaging," "plundering," "predatory," (the old three P's again).

I may use tomfoolery and a lot that sees beyond the present into of the other things you mentioned. "You bet!" Crows watch the farmer plant the corn and they are not the only birds of prey waiting for some one to raise a crop. If you will look around in your own fair city you might find quite a number that would be qualified for the ducksoup class.

A man who has trained himself to the prejudiced state of mind I fancy you are in, could see no merit in any complaint an income taxpayer might make, you could see but one angle which you will qualify now by citing the Maresnest the president just found in the bushes. I know quite a number of honest conscientious people who are not trying to dodge their tax, but what they want is fairness and to know when they have complied with the law, that they will not be hounded, no one knows or has any way of knowing that his tax return will be acceptable, the conditions are so ambiguous that the so-called tax experts can not assure you that you will not be subjected to penalties for a so-called crime beyond your control, a state which must be consoling to your type.

As I read your diatribes, not only the replies to myself, but to others, your theme is one of hatred and vindictiveness which you try to cover by a jumble of words and phrases. I have never worried as to who you are, or your business; from an article in one of the papers you were accused of being an attorney, and from your own expressions I should judge you considered yourself the kingpin and defender of the faithful in Santa Ana. Now Mr. Walker, I assume no literary ability nor education, and I never expected to display the lack of it through a paper. The editor must be a man of fortitude and strength, or he would have become punch groggy by this time.

W. H. CROCKER.

Editor Register: Several of our Orange County patriots and keen intellects have contributed articles to the Register Clearing House in which they have courageously pointed out the mistakes and follies of the Roosevelt administration. This is no small concern of a sane, straight-thinking minority. No doubt the majority of the Register's readers agrees with Mrs. Cottingham in appreciating the courage displayed by the Register's editor in enlightening his readers relative to the prevailing erroneous notions of finances, wages, capital, education, etc.

The devastating socialism of the New Deal is weaving itself into the warp and woof of our national government, of liberty and independence. It is done under the supervision of experts of communistic complexion. It is woven into an intricate net of a strongly centralized government, affecting every phase of our national life. The methods used are in line with those of Trotsky and Lenin. The cardinal principles of our American heritage are at stake. It behooves us to watch and pray that we may at least save a part of those principles that have made us an ingenious people of pluck, courage, and success—in fact the most prosperous nation of the world. What we need is not the narrow vision of temporary prosperity, of coinage and credit inflation, but the broader horizon that sees beyond the present into the inevitable conditions of future generations. Theirs will be a life-time struggle with an unsurmountable debt recklessly heaped up by New Deal promoters.

F. D. Roosevelt is still persistent in revamping the Supreme Court, in making laws that deprive an honest and efficient laborer of his due reward. Obviously his object is to gain the favor of a majority who are chiefly concerned about the present, the spending or manipulating of the inflated dollar. Shorter hours and higher wages, irrespective of production, will in the end prove destructive to both employer and employee.

The New Deal regime is sowing seeds of discontent, idleness, class-hatred, strife and pernicious labor strikes. These are causing a destructive set-back to business and labor. We are all bound to suffer the consequences of these futile panaceas. What can we do to save our country from the claws of a ruinous dictatorship?

Me and Glasses Magee was sitting on his front steps just sitting there, and I said, Good nite this is a slow afternoon. I bet we could sit here for 3 more hours without anything happening. I said,

I bet you're rite, that's just what I was thinking. Glasses said, Holey smokes why dont anything ever happen to us like the things you read about? he said, and I said, That's what I was thinking. For instants I dont wish anybody any harm, but why cant an airplane crack up in the street rite in front of us, I mean without any of the passengers being seriously killed or anything, and we could rush out and pull everybody out of the wreckage just before it cawt fire and sayed their lives. How would that be for something happening? I said,

Swell, Glasses said. Or even a runaway horse wouldn't be bad. It could be attached to a red wagon, and we could both run out in the street waving our arms and jumping around to keep the horse from running between us, till it got so exhausted it had to stop, and the wagon could be full of dynamite, and that's why it was painted red for danger, so we prevented a farsee explosion and we mite both get a meddle for it, Glasses said, and I said, We could get a meddle for saving the airplane passengers, too. Sure, but what's a use hoping? Nothing's going to happen, Glasses said, and I said, Sure, what's a use?

Wich just then there was a farsee noise down at the corner sounding like a dog fite, and me and Glasses quick ran down and it was 2 dogs wanting to fite but both being held back on the end of a leash, causing such a lot of excitement it made me and Glasses feel all rite again.

Proving it's a good thing for people they're satisfied with a good eel less than they think they need.

News Behind The News

BY PAUL MALLON

JOKER!

WASHINGTON, June 7.—The house farm bloc has been prowling through the omnibus farm bill in private, trying to find out what it is all about. The provlers stumbled the other day upon what they thought was an alarming joker. Agriculture Secretary Wallace was summoned to a secret meeting of the house agriculture committee. The door was locked and he was put through what is known in legislative circles as the hoops, meaning a mild congressional form of the third degree.

Nothing was made public about it, and probably nothing will be said officially, but there is reason to believe Mr. Wallace and the legislators agreed the proposed benefit-payment system was slightly lopsided.

In fact, an exceptionally able unofficial reporter thought he heard them agree the corn farmers would get about half of the federal funds and the other half would be split among the wheat, cotton, tobacco and peanut farmers.

You can imagine what effect this had on the cotton legislators from southern states.

DISAFFECTION—

The disparity will undoubtedly be adjusted before (and if) the bill ever gets out of the committee. For the time being, it has prejudiced the southern bloc against the whole bill, as news of the discovery has been passed around the house by word of mouth it has increased the likelihood of indefinitely delaying all the legislation except the ever-normal granary portion, which may be lifted out of the bill and passed separately.

The real root of the silent opposition, however, lies in fear of the unconstitutionality of the measure. Some farm members reason this way: No one has questioned the constitutionality of the soil conservation act, under which benefit payments now are being made. The system (they say) is working very well. If this new bill is passed, it surely will be challenged. Why risk it?

Furthermore, the best agricultural authority on the committee (and he is a New Dealer) says the estimated $280,000,000 annual cost of the bill is really only about half of what the total cost will amount to. Mr. Wallace, he says, was unable to furnish the committee even an estimate of the administrative costs of distributing the $280,000,000 of benefit payments.

At any rate, the bill is deeply involved in difficulties and its fate is becoming more and more uncertain.

EFFICIENCY—

One of President Roosevelt's friends remarked recently that, if the President had fifty Joe Kennedys, his New Deal would be romping along with half the engine trouble it has developed lately. Mr. Kennedy is a business mechanic, now organizing the maritime commission in the forceful way of a capable business executive, to wit:

An announcement was made by his commission the other day to the effect that bids for purchase of 28 vessels of its laid-up fleet were too low. Mr. Kennedy called for new bids, not only from Americans but from any foreigners who would agree not to use the ships to or from U. S. ports.

No explanation was offered, but behind the step was the fact that a Canadian firm bid twice as much for 15 of the 28 ships as any American firm bid for the whole 28. Businessman Kennedy could not see any percentage in letting his idle fleet go for a domestic song when he might get real money abroad.

When his purpose becomes known, there will undoubtedly be a hue and cry against selling the ships to foreign interests, but the betting is even that Mr. Kennedy will have his way and get his price.

SOFT—

Senators with a knowledge of the inside on the recent Spanish bomb turmoil are inclined to blame the weakness of the British foreign policy. They are saying (not officially, of course) that London has less influence on the continent now than at any time they can remember.

Strangely, they are inclined to absolve personally Anthony Eden, the British foreign minister. They suspect restraints have been placed upon him by Downing street, or someone who may own the building at No. 10. But they insist that, if the British could decide which side they want to be on, they could keep the peace in Europe.

British spokesmen refute this talk and suggest this is not the time for anyone to try strong pressure unless he wants to go to war to back it up. The British probably will be ready for that about this time next year.

TREND—

Old-time congressmen are talking of the growth of socialism among young Democrats and wondering where it will lead. A midwest member of the house is telling one about a young Democratic attorney for whom he obtained a position with a government project at Knoxville, Tenn., about a year ago. The young attorney dropped in to see his benefactor a few days ago, and announced: "I am no longer a Democrat. I am a Socialist now. All my associates are Socialists."

The congressman suggested that, hereafter, the young man get his endorsement for government position from Norman Thomas and see how many jobs he gets. But that suggestion had no effect. The young man said he would remain a Socialist, patronage or no patronage.

OUR CHILDREN

BY ANGELO PATRI

THE BITER

Mother was playing with Baby before putting him in his crib for the afternoon nap. Baby stroked mother's arm gently, and then, without warning, bit it as hard as he could bite. Mother, startled and angry, slapped Baby soundly and scolded him vigorously. "You are a bad baby to bite your mother like that. You hurt me. You are old enough to know better than that even if you are only two."

Baby cried loudly, angrily and, getting a good start, continued until he was tired out. "Now what do you think of that? Wasn't it terrible? To bite his own mother like that? Just look at my arm. Black and blue, and almost cut through. Imagine! I slapped him thoroughly. Maybe he will not try that again."

But he did, and not long afterward. He was in an affectionate mood, cooing and gurgling, talking about his doggie, his dinner, his dear mummy, and then he bit her. Again she slapped him. But this time she was deeply troubled. What ailed this child? Wasn't he human? Was he going to be vicious?

"Don't be silly, Caroline. He was loving you and his emotion overflowed and took that way out. He bit you out of sheer joy in your presence. Babies his age sometimes do that."

"Or his teeth may hurt him. Look at his gums. Rub them with a wad of gauze dipped in boric acid or witch hazel, something to cool them off. A bit of ice in a clean linen rag for him to suck on helps."

"And give him a coral to bite on for a while. The impulse to press his teeth or his gums down hard against things is likely to come any time. Just give him something he can bite on and maybe he won't use you. He isn't being a monster child at all. Give him a chance to get over this spell."

Many little children take a bite now and then, when they are in the teething stage. Their emotions overflow. Or their gums hurt. Or there is some lack in their diet. Study the cause and do your best to remove it. The phase soon passes. Getting angry and slapping and scolding are likely to do just that. It is hard to control oneself when one is biter, suddenly and sharply, but one must try.

Show the child that he made a mistake; look sternly at him, say, "No, no." If he is old enough say, "That was a bad mistake. You must not use your teeth on people. Here. Bite your coral. Bite this crust. Wash your mouth with this solution." Indicate that there are other ways of getting comfort that is harmless, and the difficulty wears itself away.

Some children bite their cribs. Some bite themselves. Some bite their pets. Don't be frightened. Set about correcting a mistake. It will pass soon, when the teeth are all set, if you do not set it for a long stay by surrounding it with high emotion. Get angry, slap, storm, and the experience is likely to be prolonged. Go about the correction calmly, providing an outlet that is harmless, and the difficulty wears itself away.

Editor Register: The Pot Calls the Kettle Black, or The Story of the Three P's.

Mr. Walker seems greatly concerned as to my business and occupation,—perhaps my private life; he even intimates that I might be a person of fiction instigated by The Register; he can't find my name in the Who's Who, nor the county or city directory, or the voter's register; this looks suspicious I will admit, and when I gave him a list of some of the ways I might have acquired my pittance of ill-gotten wealth, he puffed it, and weathering the financial storm, he considered mere "duck soup" to me. He never resorts to "effusion," "tomfoolery," "persiflage," or "trivialities." "Oh consistency thou art a jewel!" He found four paragraphs of "my next to last outpouring of nonsense," "with a glimmer of concealed suggestion," and then I read down quite a lengthy column about wolves, crows, birds of prey eating up the lambs; the eggs, and about the wolves and the crows munching their crippled comrades and offsprings. Then there is quite an inter sprinkle of predatory, pillaging, plundering, (the three P's) rapacity; then he likens me to a mountain goat,—well I feel like one at times the way we are being hunted. He makes light of my repelling the roof in fair weather, as if there were no shingles at that time. I can't go into all of his "effusions,"—space forbids. He calls attention to our forests being plundered and slaughtered, which I agree was bad, as was also the slaughtering of little calves and pigs along with warring corn that the crows feed.

Do you remember Sharpless, how we used to smack our lips over the corn pone our mothers made; shucks! I find myself growing sentimental over those old days which I had best forget.

That was a good one you told about Coolidge cutting the apple
